Gigantic Stage Is All Set For Music Fete Tonight

Grab Supper And Be in Time For Good Seat

By PAUL WARWICK.
Grab an early supper—be in your seat on time—and if you have cheers to shout, prepare to shout them now—for tonight is the night of Atlanta's most stupendous and exciting annual free spectacle de luxe—the Greater Atlanta Music Festival at Grant field.

The gigantic stage is all set—the east of thousands is trained and ready, a bigger multitude than ever is planning to overflow the stands—and when the clock's hands stand at 8 o'clock tonight, The Atlanta Constitution's fourth annual heroic-scale pageant will be under its colorful way.

This big event has made history in its brief but ever-expanding existence and tonight offers more glamor, excitement and whole-souled entertainment than in any of its three previous record-smashing demonstrations.

First Note.

From the time the first piano note from the twin-piano team tinkles its way into the loudspeaking system to start the performance, until the last inspiring echo of "The Star-Spangled Banner" has vanished across the surrounding slopes, the night will be filled with action—the sort of action that can only come from eager youth with patriotic fervor in the air to fan its own enthusiasm.

More than 20 school bands, for example, will perform as individual units, and, as a climatic feature, in unison as a 1,000-piece musical merger under the skilled direction of Paul Yoder, national known band director and music arranger who was brought here from his headquarters in Chicago especially for the occasion.

High-stepping and zestful, more than 200 drum majors and forefates will vie with each other in baton-twirling competition.

Trained by 60 of their own teachers appointed by M. E. Coleman, assistant superintendent of Atlanta schools, 1,258 school children will appear in colorful folk dances. Atlanta and Fulton county school students will also stage a demonstration of mass flag-waving—a precision spectacle which originated in Switzerland and is making its first Atlanta appearance, under the guidance of Arlie H. Richardson, band chairman.

Dorothy Lamour.

Dorothy Lamour, the Hollywood star who put the word "sarong" in our vocabularies, and Jetsy Parker, the "Ship Ahoy" model starlet and an ex-world's champion at baton-twirling, will add their grace and beauty to the event—brought here by the Georgia War Savings Staff, with which organization The Constitution and the festival in general are co-operating to stimulate the sale of war savings bonds and stamps.

Further evidence of this patriotic phase comes in the baton-twirling competition to disclose the Georgia champions—for The Constitution is awarding $25 war bonds for first place winners and $10 in war stamps to second place winners in each of the three competing groups.

Marion Allen, state bond administrator, will address the throng briefly in behalf of the coming bond campaign which begins Monday, prior to introduction of Miss Lamour to the audience by Arthur Lucas, state bond chairman.

In charge of handling the large crowd—which last year exceeded 35,000—and seeing that they are STEPPIN' OUT TONIGHT—Hundreds of boys and girls will step high tonight at the 4th annual Greater Atlanta Music Festival sponsored by The Atlanta Constitution. Joyce Carter, 14, of Bass Junior High, is typical of the spirit of fun and frolic that will prevail. She'll strut as a drum majorette. The big show begins at 8 o'clock in the Georgia Tech football stadium. Screen Actress Dorothy Lamour is on the program.

Cars Used in Work Will Get Extra Gas

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—tractors—would receive an unlimited supply. Between that group and the "nonessential" classification would fall the thousands who drive to work or use their cars for business purposes.

To take care of that group, Henderson said that three additional "work" classifications would be set up on the basis of need. Depending upon the classification, the owner of "work" car would be entitled to 22, 30 or 38 gallons for the period, or a little more than three, four or five gallons a week respectively.

Johnny Jones Found Guilty in Perjury Case

Johnny J. Jones, 63-year-old Augusta lawyer, yesterday was found guilty in Fulton superior court of subornation of perjury in securing divorces in Atlanta for nonresidents of the state. Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, presiding, sentenced him to serve two three-year sentences concurrently.

Flanking Force Wiped Out by Chinese Troops

CHUNGKING, China, May 8.—(P)—Falling with savage fury upon two Japanese columns thrusting into China along the Burma road, counterattacking Chinese wiped out one invading force of 1,000 men, killed 500 out of another of equal strength and trapped the remainder, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's high command announced tonight.

An official announcement said this triumph converted into disaster a Japanese attempt to flank Chinese troops of Lieutenant General Joseph W. Stilwell in the sector near Chefang, 25 miles inside the Yunnan province from Burma.

The Flying Tigers of the American Volunteer Group protected Chinese bombers which battered Japanese troops and trucks in western Yunnan yesterday, an AVG communiqué said.

The Japanese aerial offensive in eastern China, aimed at destroying possible bases for bombing Japan proper, was stepped up today with bombings in Kiangsi and the east coast provinces of Chekiang and Fukien. Some 48 enemy planes in eight flights attacked various Kiangsi province towns, particularly the temporary capital of Kian. Other Japanese planes reconnoitered Hunan province extensively.

The bloody fighting was said to have occurred yesterday afternoon when truckloads of Japanese reinforcements, moving up from the border town of Wanting, split into two forces and attacked both Chinese flanks.

Some enemy units penetrated behind the Chinese line, the communiqué indicated, but in the end, the battlefield was strewn with 1,500 Japanese dead with between 400 and 500, all that were left, pocketed.

Chefang's Loss Admitted. From the Chinese account, it appeared that the defenders might have destroyed Japanese spearheads which Tokyo claimed had driven past Chefang to Lungling, 25 miles deeper into China. The Chinese acknowledged yesterday the loss of Chefang itself.

(The Japanese announced officially their forces occupied Bhamo, head of the Irrawaddy navigation in Burma, last Sunday. With the fall of this town and Japanese occupation of Lashio earlier, Domes declared the Chungking government had been cut off completely from outside aid.)

In Hupeh province the Chinese announced that 10,000 Japanese troops with more than 30 pieces of artillery started a drive in the Mienyang sector, 85 miles southwest of Hankow, last Tuesday but were intercepted by Chinese forces and heavy fighting ensued.

Another Japanese thrust southward in the Shanghai and Shanghai areas of Chekiang province was reported beaten back with heavy enemy casualties while additional casualties were reported inflicted upon the invader in a battle on April 29 at Taohsien, Suiyan province.

Japs Reinforcing Manchuria Posts

LONDON, May 8.—(P)—Reuters news agency reported today that the Japanese were rushing troops into Manchuria, according to information in Chungking. The Japanese North China garrisons were reported being filled up with troops of the Wang Ching-wei Chinese puppet regime.

Better bring along a coat or a sweater for the Greater Atlanta Music Festival tonight at the Georgia Tech football stadium, for the weatherman forecasts cool temperatures for today, but no rain. It will be slightly warmer tonight than it was last night, but a light wrap will not be uncomfortable.

Yesterday the high, instead of the warm 86 Atlantans have enjoyed for the past few days, was a cool 65 and the low was 50.

Enemy Breaks Off Action in Coral Sea After 6-Day Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
United States and Allied warships fighting one of the greatest sea battles of history, have smashed a proud Japanese invasion armada off northeastern Australia after an epic six-day fight upon which the fate of Australia may well have hinged.

The battered Japanese enemy was reported limping northward toward United States and British Imperial units in hot pursuit. "Our attacks will continue," the Allied communiqué said in reporting that the battle had ceased temporarily.

General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia officially announced today that the Japanese had been repulsed after 11 or more of their warships and auxiliaries were sent to the bottom of the Coral Sea.

Six other Japanese ships were damaged, and presumably thousands of trained Japanese seamen perished aboard the vessels which went down under the blast of American dive-bombers and big naval artillery.

While cautiously saying only that the battle had ceased "temporarily," General MacArthur's headquarters nevertheless said flatly that the Japanese had been repulsed.

18 Reported Sunk. The British Agency Reuters said the Japanese lost seven more ships than Washington has claimed thus far. Quoting advices from an advanced Allied base in Australia, Reuters said the Japanese lost 18 warships and auxiliaries, including at least two aircraft carriers, a cruiser and six or seven destroyers.

Four other Japanese ships were damaged, Reuters said, making a total of 22 enemy ships sunk or damaged.

Only four hours before the cheering news had been received from Australia, the Navy Department had said that the issue still was in doubt.

First eyewitness accounts reaching an advanced Allied base said hundreds of Japanese crewmen had to dive overboard amid smoke and flame from two aircraft carriers sunk or damaged by aerial bombs in the first blow of the Allied assault.

Jap Casualties Great. These reports said Japanese personnel losses may run into the thousands.

Japanese destroyers tried desperately but vainly to save the carriers, blasted into torn and blazing hulks by American bombing planes which pressed home their attack in a hell of anti-aircraft fire and challenging hordes of Japanese Zero fighters.

"We might have been blasted out of our beds last night if this hadn't happened," commented one naval spokesman ashore on the results thus far of the still-raging battle.

"But we got in there and did

Wallace Sees Jap Attacks On U. S., Alaska

NEW YORK, May 8.—(P)—Vice President Wallace, predicting the Axis would strike a "last desperate blow" this summer, said tonight that this might include a Japanese attack on Alaska and the northwest United States coast with a simultaneous German uprising in Latin America.

The vice president said in an address prepared for a dinner of Free World Association here that this country must look for "the worst kind of Fifth Column work in Latin America, much of it operating through the agency of governments with which the United States at present is at peace."

"When I say this," he added, "I recognize that the peoples both of Latin America and of the nations supporting the agencies through which the Fifth Columnists work are overwhelmingly on the side of the democracies."

He did not name the nations to which he referred.

Hitler knows, Wallace went on, that the United States is winning the battle of production and the German leader, "like the prize fighter who realizes he is on the verge of being knocked out, is gathering all of his remaining forces for one last desperate blow."

Then, predicting this blow would come in the critical summer months, he declared:

"We may be sure that Hitler and Japan will co-operate to do the unexpected—perhaps an attack against Alaska and our north-

STRATEGY OF GREAT BATTLE—While the greatest naval battle in U. S. history raged in the Coral Sea, London observers yesterday conjectured that the Allied fleet had intercepted a Japanese invasion convoy's drive from Rabaul or the Solomon Islands toward (black arrows) the New Hebrides or New Caledonia. This aim would be to encircle Australia on the East and cut or threaten U. S. supply lines, represented by the broken arrow.

British Rush Troops to Ceylon To Meet Jap Invasion Threat

Little Tokyo, in Los Angeles' Heart, Becomes Ghost Town

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—(P)—Little Tokyo is no more. The calm of desertion fell today over this city within a city—only a block from the heart of Los Angeles' downtown district, and the largest Japanese settlement in America—as the Army completed its evacuation.

There was much of drama, but little of emotion as steel-helmeted troops guided Little Tokyo's remaining 2,200 residents aboard buses for the Santa Anita assembly center, first stage of their journey into wartime exile.

The Japanese, surrounded by such of their possessions as they could take with them, smiled fixedly, with Oriental inscrutability. There was an occasional wisecrack by a younger Japanese, schooled in American ways, but for the most part the evacuees were silent. They showed neither sorrow, regret nor anger.

Perhaps Harry Ito expressed the sentiments of many. He wore the cap of an American Legionnaire, said he fought in three World War I campaigns with the 125th Field Artillery.

"We feel it—deep down," he declared. "I thought perhaps because of my war record my wife and I could stay. But we're going. My market—I had to sacri-

Enemy Reported Aboard Ships at Rangoon for New Drive

LONDON, May 8.—(P)—The British quickly sent reinforcements to Ceylon and strove to clean up any remaining Vichy-French resistance on Madagascar today as the urgency of controlling the Indian ocean was stressed by reports that Japanese invasion forces already were aboard ship in Rangoon, ready to attack India.

Burma, scene of one of the most stubborn delaying actions of the war, was almost completely overrun by the Japanese for strategic considerations.

Military sources acknowledged that the Japanese probably had taken the west Burma port of Akyab, 300 air miles from Calcutta, but said they had no confirmation of a German broadcast assertion that the Japanese already had crossed the border into India.

It was conceded that Japanese patrols may have entered India "purely for propaganda purposes," but the informants held to the belief that any Japanese invasion of the tempting treasure-house of India would come from the sea, with Akyab and its airfield as the base of heavy preparatory air attacks on the Ganges basin.

Aligned with this view was the announcement that Major General Lewis H. Brereton's United States

JOHNSON TOLD TO REST. NEW DELHI, India, May 8.—(P)—Louis Johnson, President Roosevelt's envoy to India, has been advised to rest for two or three days to recover from strain resulting from overwork.

DON'T CROWD, FELLOWS—Just take it easy, boys, and everything will be all right. Dorothy Lamour is going to be at the Music Festival tonight, and you'll get to see her in person. Later she'll dance with some lucky guy at the Buy-a-Bomber show at the municipal auditorium. Miss Lamour comes to Atlanta to help launch the great house-to-house bond pledge canvass for the Treasury Department in DeKalb and Fulton counties.

YODER ARRIVES—Paul Yoder, famous Chicago music arranger and band director, who will conduct the 1,000-piece massed band in the Greater Atlanta Music Festival at Georgia Tech stadium tonight, came in early yesterday for a rehearsal with the mammoth band. Here he is (left) being greeted by Arlie H. Richardson, festival band chairman, center, and Lee Rogers, city editor of The Atlanta Constitution, which brings Yoder here.

Bernie Burns As Blond Star Steals Spotlight

Ben Isn't Even Noticed as Mary Carlisle Lands Here.

Word spread that Ben Bernie was coming in on the Miami plane yesterday afternoon at the airport, and a goodly crowd of autograph seekers gathered from the offices.

The Miami plane landed and the crowd pushed into the narrow entrance of the passage leading from the field to the administration building so Bernie couldn't get by without being seen.

The Constitution's reporter and photographer put on their best newshawk faces and scanned every passenger. The photographer nudged the reporter.

"Boy, ain't she a beauty?" he said.

The reporter looked and sighed. The little blonde walked on down the aisle into the administration building, many eyes upon her.

The policeman who had been trying to spot Bernie, turned our way, puzzled. "He must not have been on that plane," he said. "All the passengers are off."

The newspapermen rushed into the administration building to check on other Miami planes. Then they saw the blonde again. She was talking to a tanned gent with a moustache. The gent lit a cigar.

Yes sir, it was Ben Bernie, and he had walked right by without being seen, because he was with the blonde.

And who was the blonde? Oh, yes, gentlemen—the blonde—Well, that was Mary Carlisle, the movie star, headed from Miami to Hollywood after spending two months honeymooning with Jim Blakely—the lucky bum.

"No wonder you missed me," laughed Bernie. "From now on I'm going to let this little girl with the pretty kisser follow me out, so someone will look my way."

Bernie is here for the Buy a Bomber Ball tonight.

Mary, darn it all, left last night for Hollywood. Looks to the newspapermen as if the air line could have left her stranded for a few days, at least.

Accident Problem Changes Discussed

Employers must change their accident-prevention programs, because women are entering industry in such large numbers, G. L. Marston told the southern advisory board of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company at a luncheon meeting yesterday.

The vice president and manager of the claim department said that "prevention measures which have been successful with men don't work for the women who take their places." The difference in temperament, clothes, physical limitations and nervous reaction must be taken into consideration, so that the accident rate will not increase, he said.

E. A. Burtzloff, resident vice president here, and W. P. Rogers, district sales manager, were among those attending the meeting at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Dr. Beeler Indicted On Assault Charge

Dr. J. Moss Beeler, superintendent of Grady hospital since 1938, yesterday was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury on charges of assault and battery against Paul Whitten.

Councilman Frank Wilson, council representative on the Grady hospital board of trustees, said the board will meet at 10 o'clock this morning in the office of Thomas K. Glenn, board chairman, to consider the charges. He said Dr. Beeler probably will ask for a leave of absence until the charges are adjudicated.

Names of W. Julian Carter and Lewis W. Moore appear on the indictment as witnesses.

Sugar Shortage May Affect Stills

MACON, Ga., May 8.—(AP)—Revenue agent of the middle Georgia district, uncovering their first still using syrup instead of sugar, predicted today that the stills would be forced to close within a month because of the sugar shortage.

Some of the moonshiners stocked up before the rationing program went into effect but the officers said they believed these stocks would be exhausted within the next month.

The distiller using syrup instead of sugar in the mash told the agents he was making "my last run" when officers arrested him.

Six Warplanes Downed In 2,300th Malta Raid

VALETTA, Malta, May 8.—(AP)—Two A-1 bombers and four fighters were destroyed and three bombers and three fighters severely damaged in the 2,300th air raid on Malta today, a government communique said.

The three bombers and three fighters were shot up so badly they probably failed to reach their base, the announcement said. Two other bombers and two fighters were also damaged.

BRYANT ESSAY JUDGE

H. C. Bryant, superintendent of the Druid Hills high school, has been appointed a judge in the state high school essay contest sponsored by the Pan American Union on the subject, "What Inter-American Co-operation Means to My Country." Bryant will replace John Chadwick, of the Associated Press, who was unable to serve.

AW, LOOK AT BERNIE, TOO—When you get through looking at this picture, move your eyes to the right and you'll see Ben Bernie, too. House Group's Experts Devise Tax Schedule

Lesser Increases Provided; Steep Boosts Leave Body Cold.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee, which has shown no enthusiasm for the steep boosts proposed by the Treasury in individual income taxes, received from its own technical experts today a schedule of lesser increases calling for a 6 per cent normal tax and a surtax starting at 11 per cent on the first $2,000 of net income.

Details were not disclosed, and Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, told newspapermen only that the schedule presented by Colin F. Stam, head of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue, was "higher than the present law but lower than the Treasury program."

It was learned, however, that Stam had recommended schedules designed to raise $1,900,000,000 additional from income taxes, compared with two Treasury plans estimated to yield $3,200,000,000 and $4,300,000,000 additional, respectively.

Doughton said that by Monday the committee would have finished its debate and would be ready to vote. As the members took a weekend recess, the principal alternatives laid before them were about like this:

1. Treasury recommendations of March 3—Retain present normal surtax of 4 per cent; boost the present surtax rates, ranging from 6 per cent to 77 per cent, to 12 per cent to 86 per cent, with the low income earner's rate increased by the heaviest increase; eliminate the earned income credit in computation of normal taxes; yield, $3,200,000,000.

2. Secretary Morgenthau's recommendation of yesterday—Reduce personal exemptions as follows: Single persons, $750 to $600; married couples, $1,500 to $1,200; dependents, $400 to $300; yield, an additional $1,100,000,000.

3. Stam's recommendation today—Raise normal tax to six per cent; retain present earned income credit; boost surtax rates to 11 to 80 per cent, with the 11 per cent applicable to the first $2,000 of net income.

Jones Wants Five Billions More for RFC

Borrowing Power Asked To Expand War Plants.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Jones asked congress today to give $5,000,000,000 of additional borrowing authority to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation so that it might carry on a vast program of war plant expansion, purchase of vital materials, and the financing of many other war activities.

Testifying before a senate banking subcommittee, Jones said that among other things the new funds would be needed to finance an aluminum plant expansion program, which he said would result in an annual capacity of 2,100,000,000 pounds of the metal by early 1943.

"It looks like we were going to have ample aluminum," the lending chief asserted.

Production, he said, already has reached a rate of 1,000,000,000 pounds annually compared with 300,000,000 pounds two years ago and 540,000,000 pounds last year.

Jones told the committee that commitments by the RFC and its subsidiaries in the wartime lending and spending program now totaled $14,300,000,000, of which $576,000,000 had been cancelled for various reasons and $565,000,000 repaid.

The total, he said, was divided between $1,500,000,000 in loans and the rest in purchases or investments. About $11,000,000,000 of the total, he testified, had not yet been disbursed, although outlays had now reached $10,000,000,000 or $12,000,000,000 a day. Under present law the RFC may borrow $9,130,000,000, he said.

"We've done a lot of interesting things, all of which cost money," Jones remarked.

Jane Wyman Stricken With Food Poisoning

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., May 8.—(AP)—Stricken with food poisoning while en route here to assist in a War Bond drive, Jane Wyman, of the movies, was taken to a hotel today in what a physician called a painful but not serious condition.

Reds Repulse 3-Way Attack Into Karelia

Bombing Planes Driven From Forward Bases in North.

MOSCOW, May 8.—(AP)—The Red army and air force were reported in official dispatches tonight to have wrecked a three-way German spring offensive aimed from Finland into Soviet Karelia and to have driven large numbers of Nazi bombing planes from forward bases near Russia's vital water and rail communications in the Arctic.

German troops engaged with snatching across the Karelian frontier at three points were driven from Russian soil with heavy losses, said frontier dispatches to the Communist newspaper Pravda.

From the Arctic front, the army newspaper Red Star reported that German bombing fleets, after a futile six-week offensive against the northern sea lanes and Russian rail lines over which increasing American and British supplies are moving via Murmansk and Archangel, had been forced to withdraw to more remote stations in Norway and Finland.

Second Invasion Attempt.

Still other dispatches, dealing with recent weeks of heavy fighting from Leningrad southwest to Staraya Russa, estimated 30,000 Germans had been lost in counterattacks which failed to take the initiative from the Red army.

The Karelian fighting represented the second attempt by Russia's enemies to invade this sector, for at the outbreak of the war a Finnish battalion of 1,200 men, supported by two German companies, was driven back after crossing the frontier.

During the winter the area remained comparatively stable, with the Russians executing raids behind the enemy lines while the German command planned a spring attack. This said Pravda, was entrusted entirely to German troops, who launched the assault last month.

Russian frontier forces ejected three German battalions soon after they crossed the border, the account continued.

Infantry Assault Checked.

Then a particularly intensive battle developed at one Russian post near the border. A German infantry assault was checked in its first day, the Germans suffering 340 casualties, and the forces settled down to a bloody three-day artillery duel.

The Germans retreated on the fifth day, fearing a counterattack, said Pravda. Two other columns were reported to have followed the first back into Finland.

The northern air action the Russians, hammering steadily at five German airports, carried out 14 raids and, in the last two days, destroyed 43 German planes, Red Star said.

The Germans had been concentrating on the Soviet northern lines of communication with the Arctic supply ports, blasting at railways, bridges, stations and trains in groups of 20 bombers, protected by low-flying fighters, and dropping 1,000-pound bombs, many of them delayed action types.

Stump In Command.

Their commander was said to have been Colonel General Hans Juergen Stumpf, recently in charge of air fleet No. 5 in Norway, the Netherlands and Denmark.

The Nazi air force arrived at northern Norwegian airbases late in March and included four-engine bombers, dive bombers and torpedo-carrying aircraft, reinforced by some Finnish types for scouting.

Red Star said the scanty results obtained by the Germans were exemplified by the fact that one railroad line was bombed 35 times, but tracks were damaged in only a few places and were repaired rapidly.

Five major raids were made on the important ice-free port of Murmansk, the last April 25, with the Germans using 30 to 70 planes in each raid, mostly dive bombers. But 64 of the attackers were destroyed over Murmansk alone, Red Star reported.

On the Kalinin front, that part of the northwest sector nearest to Moscow, Cossack cavalrymen, continuing their raids on the enemy's rear, were credited with taking three more settlements from the Germans.

Bond Program To Be Held in Decatur Today

Dorothy Lamour Will Be Present for Mammoth Rally.

Thousands of DeKalb county citizens will crowd the courthouse square in Decatur at 3 o'clock this afternoon to rally in the war bond drive—and to get a glimpse of Dorothy Lamour, who will be the leading figure in a mammoth patriotic program there.

Approximately 10,000 persons are expected to attend the meeting, J. C. Haynes, chairman for the bond campaign in DeKalb, announced.

Bands from Tucker and Chamblee schools and the Decatur Girls' High school orchestra, directed by Mrs. Cottie Clarke, will play, and Mrs. Russell Harrison will lead the group in singing. Other music will be furnished by 75 children from the Methodist Children's Home and by Miss George Clark, who will sing the "Star-Spangled Banner."

A "Youth Rally" will be held this morning when hundreds of DeKalb 4-H and FFA club members will come into town to attend free movies at the two Decatur theaters, beginning at 9:45 o'clock, and to parade at noon as their part in the bond drive.

R. B. Caudill, Missing Three Weeks, Is Found

R. B. Caudill, Atlanta market operator, missing from home for more than three weeks, has been found and returned to his home at 505 Eighth street, N. E., it was learned yesterday.

Caudill was found by a detective in Indianapolis, Ind., after the detective read newspaper accounts of the disappearance. The detective told Caudill's family he had been "seriously ill."

Welfare Group's Work To Be Exhibited Here

Exhibits depicting work of four social welfare organizations will be presented during May and June by the Georgia Conference of Social Welfare.

The first will be placed in Rich's window May 18, and will feature the Works Project Administration. Other organizations to have displays are State Department of Public Health, State Department of Public Welfare, Children's division, and U. S. O.

Festival Program

The complete program tonight for the Music Festival, sponsored by The Constitution, will last 2 hours and 45 minutes, starting at 8 o'clock.

The program, featuring Dorothy Lamour, follows:

Twin pianos and Solovox, by Wannie Heston and Frances Wallace Stokes.

Parade of the bands (Arlie H. Richardson, band chairman).

Baton-twirling contest, judged by Paul Yoder, of Chicago.

Dances by 1,248 Atlanta elementary school students from 32 schools, Mrs. R. W. Sistrunk, chairman. Music by Miss Helen Simpson and Mrs. Grace Vaughan.

Swiss flag-swinging exhibition, by Atlanta and Fulton county schools. Arlie H. Richardson, chairman.

Exhibition by champion baton-twirlers, with Jety Parker, "Ship Ahoy" girl. Prizes awarded by The Constitution.

Match-lighting stunt, conducted by John Fulton, announcer.

Arrival of Miss Dorothy Lamour, world-famous motion picture star.

"El Capitán" by John Phillip Sousa, played by 1,000-piece massed band.

Your bond pledge campaign.

Grab Supper And Be in Time For Good Seat

Comfortably seated will be Chief M. A. Hornsby and a large detail of Atlanta police; Captain L. L. Deck, of the military department of Fulton county schools, and a staff of trained Army men, and more than 100 auxiliary police of the Civilian Defense forces. More than 300 Boy Scouts, under the leadership of Weaver Marr, Scout executive, will perform their customary invaluable services on the field and in the stands.

One outstanding feature—excitingly successful in past festivals—will be the match-lighting stunt, under the direction of John Fulton, who will act as announcer of the night's festivities.

All these enthralling details and many more, blended into a harmonious whole by Frank Drake, festival director, are now ready—ready to give the packed stands another feast of wholesome music and pageantry—ready to add another illustrious page to the record of this inspiring four-year-old event.

Bids To Be Considered On U. S.-Owned Cotton

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—The Commodity Credit Corporation announced today that it would consider bids on May 20 for the sale of government-owned cotton. As in previous sales, bids must be made on call with the corporation's right to fix prices.

The government is permitted under the farm law to sell not in excess of 300,000 bales of loan cotton per month.

HORSE SHOW FUND.

Fulton county's share of the receipts from the horse show, which began yesterday at North Fulton Park, will be divided among various charities, it was announced yesterday.

TRUCK DRIVER—Mrs. Paul Meeks, 567 Greenwood avenue, N. E., is driving a regular delivery route for a coffee company now. Switched to the job when the company lost men to the services, Mrs. Meeks is getting along fine, but a little worried about "how housewives are going to like having their coffee men taken away."

G. E. A. Opens Drive To Raise Teachers' Pay

Survey To Determine Needs of School Employees.

By LAMAR Q. BALL.
Seven lines of study were started yesterday by a fact-finding committee of the Georgia Education Association, organized as the spearhead of a drive to get the Georgia school teacher a living wage, if possible.

Teachers are asking a 25 per cent increase, which means only an average increase of $15 a month. At the meeting in the headquarters of the G. E. A. in the Walton building, the committee began work on questionnaires to be sent to school authorities in every county of Georgia. The answers to the questions will determine just what the average teacher needs to keep body and soul together in a world of mounting costs.

Vital Questions.
The committee has outlined for itself a study of vital questions:
1. A clear, concise statement of anticipated state finances.
2. What does it cost teachers to live?
3. Why should professional standards be maintained?
4. A comparison of pay in Georgia with that of surrounding states.
5. How much would the 25 per cent increase amount to in a lump sum?
6. Will proposed federal aid mean any help to the teacher?
7. What about the extra services teachers are being drafted for in the war, such as emergency classes, sugar rationing, gasoline rationing, and other calls for time and services?

Survey Described.
Kankakee Anderson, superintendent of schools in Polk county, told of a survey in his neighborhood:
"We found school teachers earned half the pay of mill workers, one-third the pay of brick masons, three-fourths the income of the average farmer."
"A stenographer in Cedartown, with only a high school education, earned $300 a year more than a school teacher."

"The school teacher does not earn as much as a grocery clerk in Cedartown, nor as much as any store employee."
"Yet their living costs are just as high."

$60 Average.
The maximum wage of a Georgia school teacher, the committee members pointed out, is only $60 a month. Only those with years of service are entitled to this peak wage. The minimum pay is $40 a month. The average is around $60. Committee members were told of conditions around the Lindale Mills.

"There are school children who work in their spare time at the mill and make more money than the school teacher."
Investigation had shown committee members that although 21 members of the senior class were preparing as teachers a year ago, only one student is seeking a teacher's qualification this year.

Many Quit Jobs.
At Agnes Scott they were shown although 18 students were studying for teachers' certificates a year ago, only four are trying this year. In one class at G. S. C. W. at Milledgeville a survey for prospective teachers showed that 36 out of the 42 in the class would not try for teachers' jobs.
J. I. Allman, of the State Board of Education, reported more than 3,000 teachers have quit their jobs in Georgia recently.
"However," said Allman, "we are still getting a supply of teachers from the married women who were retired. That rule against married teachers has been changed and the older women are coming back."

R. L. Ramsey, secretary of the G. E. A., pointed out that in one Georgia school he had found students who had flunked out of their high school classes had gone into mills in the neighborhood, earning more money than teachers who had been forced to flunk them.
Members of the committee who met and organized yesterday were Knox Walker, Atlanta; Kankakee Anderson, Cedartown; Claude Purcell, Clarksville; J. I. Allman, Atlanta; R. E. Hood, Brunswick; L. D. Haskew, Emory University, and R. L. Ramsey. Mrs. R. A. Long, of Atlanta, was unable to attend the meeting.

Forestry Bills Discussed at State Session

No Justification of Government Regulation, Speaker Says.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 8.—(AP)—W. M. Oetmeier, manager of the Superior Pine Products Company at Fargo, Ga., declared today there is no justification for proposed government regulation of privately owned forest lands.

In a speech on pending forest legislation before the twenty-first annual convention of the Georgia Forestry Association, Oetmeier discussed the Bankhead omnibus forestry bill and other proposed federal measures. He said the chief objection to the Bankhead bill was its sponsorship of the idea of government regulation of private forests.

Oetmeier also discussed the Pierce forests credits bill which would establish a forest credits bank to lend money on forest lands, and the Fulmer land lease bill.

The association opened its two-day convention with reports by President T. G. Woolford, of Atlanta, and Treasurer H. L. Kayton, of Savannah.

Following Oetmeier's address, two prize-winning essays on "Is Pulpwood Bringing a Fair Price?" were read to the convention. Robert Van Zandt, of Gulfport, Miss., won first prize and Murray Marcus, of Savannah, second.

Both Marcus and Augusta entered bids for next year's convention. A decision will be announced tomorrow along with reports by the nominations and resolutions committees.

Lyle Qualifies As Candidate In Mayor Race

Letter to Himself Now Puts Nine in Election for May 27.

Mayor Lyle yesterday wrote himself a letter and through it became a qualified candidate in the special mayor's election set for May 27.

The law requires all candidates to qualify by filing in writing with the mayor his intention to become a candidate. So Lyle notified himself that he would be a candidate and thus qualified. He previously had announced for the post.

Text of Lyle's letter to himself follows: "George B. Lyle, Mayor, City of Atlanta.

"Dear Sir: "In accordance with the requirements of the law, I am filing my formal qualification for mayor, subject to the May 27, 1942, special election.

(Signed) "GEORGE B. LYLE, Mayor."

Lyle thus became the ninth qualified candidate. Others are James R. Bachman, G. Dan Bridges, Howard Haire, William B. Hartfield, Dewey L. Johnson, Frank H. Reynolds, James Vickers and John A. White.

Oglethorpe Players Entertain Veterans

The Oglethorpe University Play Production Workshop took its latest entertainment, "Campus Capers of 1942," to the Veterans' hospital No. 48 Wednesday for the first performance on a tour which will include all the Army camps in this section.

VETS VISITING DAY

Veterans' visiting day will be observed at U. S. O. clubs May 23, it was announced yesterday. Plans call for informal presentation of the activities to the veterans of the World and Spanish-American wars, as well as those who fought in the War Between the States.

west coast at a time when German transport planes will be shuttled across from Dakar to furnish leadership and stiffening to a German uprising in Latin America.

Scores Laval. Wallace apparently referred to reports that the Vichy government might openly permit use of French African territory by Axis forces. At one point in his remarks, the vice president classified Pierre Laval, collaborationist Vichy chief, as on a par with Norway's Quisling and Italy's Mussolini as aides of Hitler, adding:

"Is there any hell hotter than that of being a Quisling, unless it is that of being a Laval or a Mussolini?"

Wallace warned that a "psychological and sabotage offensive" in the United States and Latin America was likely to be timed with an anticipated Axis military offensive.

Those duties which he said must be carried out to win the four freedoms outlined by President Roosevelt. He listed these as:

"1. The duty to produce to the limit.
"2. The duty to transport as rapidly as possible to the field of battle.
"3. The duty to fight with all that is in us.
"4. The duty to build a peace—just, charitable and enduring."

stitution. William O. Snead is the band's director. Many bands, 1,258 costumed dancers and baton twirlers will be in the show, too.

Extra Gas If Needed

istration spokesman later explained that a motorist may use all of his rationed allowance on the first day the order goes into effect, or save it for a longer trip later in the seven-week period.

Before he began his testimony, Henderson told newsmen that he was "still working to see if he could increase the allotment for nonessential cars, but I see no prospect of getting it above three gallons a week."

He estimated that the "nonessential" definition would apply to approximately one-third of the automobiles in the area. Similarly, he said vehicles entitled to an unlimited supply amounted to about a third, and added that they would get about 66 per cent of the available supply.

Operators entitled to an unlimited supply will be put on an honor basis, Henderson said. "I hope," he added, "that we will not have to ask rationing boards to take on the job of policing deliveries to unlimited users. But, if we find it necessary, we will ask local board, committees of their neighbors, to take over supervision to see that there are no abuses."

Strong Indications. There were strong indications that western Pennsylvania, western New York and at least part of West Virginia would be exempted from the rationing, because of the plentiful supplies there. Henderson spoke of the exemption as an accomplished fact. But other sources said the War Production Board would make its decision on the exemptions next Tuesday.

Henderson paid tribute to the "astounding job" done by Interior Secretary Ickes' Office of Petroleum Co-ordination in collecting gasoline and motor operation statistics, but said that even more information would be available after next week's registration of automobiles.

That registration, he said, would furnish the basis for determining the classification of an automobile. He told the committee that one of the prime beneficiaries of the rationing would be the farmer, who would be assured of an adequate supply for vehicles used to carry produce to market.

Entire Field. Widening his discussion to the entire field of price administration in response to committee queries, Henderson declared that "just as the military forces have to readjust themselves in the light of circumstances, so will the civilian population have to readjust itself."

"The civilian population has got an awful lot of fat on it," he commented. "There is great possibility of readjustment."

Those "readjustments," he said, would be made in both production and distribution, "a little here, a little there" while retaining the profit motive. He said that government subsidies in industries, to combat inflation by keeping prices down, would be considered "only as a last ditch resort."

Meanwhile, Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, said that authorities apparently had decided to reject a plea to exempt Georgia from the gasoline rationing system.

He called on Secretary Ickes, the petroleum co-ordinator, to exclude Georgia from the eastern rationing area on the ground that the state was served by pipe lines. "It doesn't look very encouraging," Russell said. "The indications are that they'll not only turn down our request but that before very long they'll start rationing all over the United States."

In Same Boat. He added a belief that New York, Pennsylvania and West Virginia were "in the same boat" as Georgia.

The Georgian said he had no official statement from authorities but formed his conclusions on the basis of informal conversations he had had with officials.

When Price Administrator Henderson revealed western Pennsylvania, western New York and part of West Virginia had been eliminated from the east coast rationing plan, Senator George Democrat, Georgia, asserted that he would insist again that the restrictions be equalized. He conceded, however, that exemption of the Pennsylvania, New York and West Virginia areas would not necessarily mean exemption for Georgia as the modifications did not affect any place far distant from production areas.

For the Navy. Representative Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, said he believed the situation could best be handled by a pipe line from the Texas oil fields to the Atlantic coast to transport petroleum for the Navy. He stated this would relieve the transportation shortage for gasoline for civilian use. He said the proposal was under study by the Navy and the petroleum co-ordinator's office and probably would be undertaken unless it became "bogged down in priorities."

Representative Ramspeck, Democrat, Georgia, said he had filed a protest against including Georgia in the rationing system. He contended that there was more than either Alabama or Tennessee, which are not included.

City To Repeat Ration Listing For Gasoline

Will Register Next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Atlantans, just out of the throes of registration for sugar rationing books, will register again next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—this time for ration cards that will enable them to buy gasoline.

The gasoline registration will be conducted in the same way as the listing for sugar users, Oscar Strauss, regional OPA director, announced.

Schools will be used as registration places and teachers and volunteer workers will handle the job of issuing the cards to motorists.

West Hits New Plan Of Collecting Union Dues

B. Graham West, city comptroller, will resist demands of Local No. 4, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, an AFL affiliate, that union dues be collected by the comptroller and paid over to the union treasurer.

West said the work of collecting dues from members would entail considerable bookkeeping and that his office already has all it can do.

A move to have the comptroller's office collect dues from those who voluntarily sought that method of making union dues payments was offered at council's last session and referred to the finance committee for study.

Canton High To Send Huge Band to Fete

36-Piece Aggregation To Appear in Constitution Festival.

By FRANK DRAKE.

From Canton High school, high in the hills of Georgia, will come one of the big marching bands to be seen on exhibition beginning at 8 o'clock tonight at Georgia Tech's stadium as the fourth annual Greater Atlanta Music Festival rolls out over the green field under the sponsorship of The Constitution.

The show, with a cast of more than 3,000, starring the personal appearance of Dorothy Lamour, who is brought here by the Georgia War Savings staff of the Treasury Department, is free to the public.

This is Canton's first year in the festival but it will be among the featured bands and will form a part of the huge 1,000-piece massed band which will be directed by Paul Yoder, famous Chicago musician. William O. Snead is director of the Canton High band.

Its personnel follows: Sam Bridges, Helen Hendon, Richard Grey, Lynn Lacy, Richard Sims, Harold Peacock, Joe McClure, Charles McCanness, Tom Arnold, Earnest Price, D. J. On Monday evening, Miss Turner will present the high school students in a recital.

The graduation exercises will be held Tuesday night with the Rev. Alfred Pullen, pastor of the Cuthbert Baptist church, of Cuthbert, delivering the baccalaureate address.

Chutist Leaves Burning Plane, Then Falls on It

MINNEAPOLIS, May 8.—(AP)—A 28-year-old Minneapolis grocer, learning to fly in his spare time, was recovering from burns today after parachuting from his burning plane and landing atop the blazing craft when it reached the ground.

Vernon Kesler, a student at Wold Chamberlain Field, was flying at about 2,000 feet near here late yesterday when his small ship burst into flames. The ship went into a spin as Kesler left the controls and jumped.

Spinning to a crash in a plowed field below, the plane flared into a mass of flames just as the pilot's chute dropped him on top of it. He suffered second-degree burns on the feet, arms and face.

Rush Help to Ceylon

Army bombers from India raided Rangoon again today for their third attack in four days. The bombers defied storms and waves of Japanese fighters in setting big fires.

Informants said the Japanese had been concentrating much more than a holding force at Rangoon and this was the reason the United States bombers had raided the port so often.

Ethiopia Veterans.

While the British land forces in Burma continued to move up the Chindwin river valley to the northwest, it was announced here that the British island of Ceylon, off India's southeast tip, had been newly reinforced with troops from northern Rhodesia, Kenya, Uganda, Tanganyika, Nyasaland and Zanzibar. They represent all arms of the service and are veterans of the conquest of Ethiopia from the Italians. Their numbers were not disclosed.

On Madagascar, where the British took the naval base and port of Diego Suarez on Thursday, there was no definite word on the extent of any remaining French resistance. Reports from Vichy said fighting still was in progress in the mountains of little distance to the south.

The Vichy radio said the total defense force on the big island was 7,000 men and that only 1,300 had been engaged in the Diego Suarez fight.

Scant Resistance Seen. British estimates of the French effectives did not exceed 4,000 and it was reported here that more than half these forces were engaged at Diego Suarez. Thus it was thought their surrender meant that scanty resistance would be encountered elsewhere.

It was evident, in any case, that the British were ready to make other landings anywhere on the 1,000-mile long island that they might need to control air bases. Diego Suarez is the only important naval base, and its swift seizure was designed to prevent a Japanese incursion that would have imperiled the sea lanes to India and the Middle East.

Meanwhile it was declared that the total British losses at Diego Suarez probably were lower than the 1,000 figure first mentioned. An infantry force reported missing in the first attack was later found dug in and combating the encircling French.

French Reported Landing Troops.

VICHY, May 8.—(AP)—A company of French troops landed from the sloop Entrecasteux was reported by an authorized source today to be fighting on in the mountains a short distance south of Diego Suarez despite capitulation of the other French forces on that northern tip of Madagascar.

The landing force was said to have put ashore Wednesday, the day following the first British landing at Courrier Bay, and to have taken up positions favorable to guerrilla warfare.

American Troops Reported at Base.

LONDON, May 8.—(AP)—The Daily Mail published today a dispatch from Madrid which said that "according to reports from Vichy," the source of which was undisclosed, United States and South African troops "are pouring into Diego Suarez," the Madagascar base just taken over by the British.

Several hours after this report was published there was no confirmation from any source.

Demands Sugar Books For Family in Austria

LANSING, Mich., May 8.—(AP)—Rationing officials conceded that the four children of a 63-year-old Lansing man might be in dire need of sugar, but cancelled all but one of his five applications for war ration books.

Investigation revealed that four children are living in Austria. Officials said the man, who came to this country from Austria in 1928, not only demanded five books but also sugar to go with them.

City Plans To Honor Employees in Services

Names of all municipal employees who have joined the services in the war effort will be inscribed on a large bulletin board in the lobby of the city hall, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Vera Hester, president of the Atlanta Club, organization of women employees at the city hall.

The organization is gathering a list of all those who have joined the service and the board will be erected within the next few days. As other enlistments are made, those joining will be added to the "City's Roll of Honor."

House Comes Down Bit by Bit—Cat Caught Like Rat in Trap

INDIANAPOLIS, May 8.—(AP)—They were tearing down Otto E. Tamm's house bit by bit with his consent today to find the cat that's been waiting for ten days, but Tamm vowed he'd soon call a halt while there still was a roof over his head.

A week ago Wednesday at 2 a. m. Tamm was sound asleep in his bungalow in a quiet neighborhood where he's lived for 30 years. Suddenly came a hideous cry like bled it. He got $50 off Tamm but Tamm got no cat.

Next a carpenter listened for meows and bored holes all over the outside of the house. Lots of holes but still no cat.

Other investigators came in, George E. Popp, city building commissioner; a cab driver claiming he had a "microphone ear;" Tamm's pet poodle and two other dogs.

Tamm and Popp agreed the cat must be in a fireplace flue. They lowered a piece of meat down the chimney but no cat nibbled. So they began tearing out the fireplace.

The cabby, certain the cat was in another wall, began tearing that out.

A woman put up a $10 reward for the finder but no one claimed it up to last midnight when the search was abandoned until sunrise.

Said Tamm: "I'm not going to tear the house clear down, or burn it down. I think I've done about all I'm going to do. I think we may find the cat today. I hope so."

French Prisoner Asks Aid of Lyle

Mayor Lyle yesterday was somewhat puzzled about how to answer a request for food and clothing from a French prisoner of war held in a German camp, and did not know whether to send food and clothing or bombs.

LaBarre Fortune in a letter from Kriegsgefangenen sendung, asked the mayor to send food and clothing to be distributed to prisoners, directing that clothing be addressed with red crayon and food with blue. The letter to Lyle was passed by German censors, and was written in German and French. If the mayor could not provide the clothing and food, he was asked to turn the letter over to French people or French officials for action.

"I think we would be furnishing food to the Nazis if we sent any," Lyle said. "The Germans would confiscate anything which went there. I'd like to send some bombs instead."

DAMAGED WILL RESTORED.

A will disposing of $220,000, damaged and charred in an air raid on England, was put together by chemical experts, photographed, and accepted by the courts.

Recorder Court Clerk, Painters Sought by City

The city personnel department yesterday opened application lists for a clerk of the recorders' courts and for painters. Lists for the painters close at 12:30 o'clock June 6, while those for the court clerk close at the same time May 23.

Edward Basmajian, former court clerk, is leaving to join the service. The clerk job pays $176 a month, while the painters will be compensated at the rate of $1.25 an hour, the prevailing wage scale.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 9, 1942.

Who Is Responsible?

Fulton county Commissioner I. Glover Halley, in a statement read on Wednesday at a meeting of the commission, declared the responsibility for governmental administration of the county rests upon the commission and "not on the shoulders of grand juries, newspapers and civic organizations."

While the thought motivating this statement is quite evident, it may be questioned whether the commissioner is correct in his statement. After all, the government of Fulton county is according to the democratic tradition and the final responsibility, under such a system, rests with the people, the voters. In a democracy public officials are but servants of the public and it is to the public they must answer if that service is not acceptable.

The commissioners do carry a responsibility, but that responsibility is to their employers, the people. If they fail in that responsibility it then becomes the duty of their masters to take them from office, via the ballot box and name others, believed to qualify as more desirable servants, in their places.

Commissioner Halley's statement dealt, in general terms, with the recently made findings of the April-May grand jury. Those findings made serious criticism of some items in the county administration. The grand jury uncovered various evils which, some day, will undoubtedly be corrected. It will require a thoroughly aroused public to do this, however, and it may well be that many groups and forces will have to reiterate the criticisms before remedial action can be secured.

The grand jury recommended that the affairs of Fulton county be placed in the hands of one competent manager, with the commission acting only in legislative capacity, outlining general policies and leaving the administration of those policies in the hands of the employed manager. At least one member of the present county commission, Troy Chastain, has said he approves the proposed change. It would require passage of special acts by the state legislature, however, before Fulton could thus change its form of government. Again, a question for the voters to decide.

There were, however, specific charges made in the grand jury findings and no direct reply to these specific charges has yet been made.

For instance, it was stated by the jury that a year ago the county employed special investigators, at a cost of several hundred dollars, to examine the county pay rolls, to discover if the county was paying more for services received than warranted by current salary levels in private business. That survey showed the county was paying its employees $75,000 more annually, than the same work would cost in private business.

Yet, reported the grand jury, the only change made has been an increase of $175,000 in county pay rolls since the report was made. The final responsibility for good government rests upon the people, who are represented by the grand juries, the newspapers and civic organizations to which Commissioner Halley referred. Good local government in time of war, when federal taxation to meet costs of war mounts to ever higher rates, consists primarily of economy. Now, more than ever before, government value is measured by the amount of service provided for each tax dollar collected. The people will use that measure in judging the services rendered by their employees, the elected public officials.

The Changing Scales

It would be utter folly to permit unwarranted optimism over the status of the war to tinge our estimates at this time. The war, for us, has barely started and each setback we suffer makes longer and harder the road we must travel to reach the ultimate and, no matter how difficult, inevitable victory.

Nevertheless it is permissible to consider some aspects of the situation which do paint a brighter coming day for our side. One of these, of primary importance, is the relative strengths of German and Russian forces on the eastern European front.

The basis for optimism in this arena of war is that, undoubtedly, Russian strength is increasing while German strength is on the wane.

During the first few weeks of the German attack last summer the Russians suffered extremely heavy losses of equipment as well as men. At that time there was no possible way in which this equipment loss could be replaced and for some months the Russians held the Germans, as well as they did, by sheer weight of manpower.

The coming of winter, with its cold and snows, brought respite to the Soviet forces. Gradually they were enabled to start and then to continue their counter-offensive, winning back a portion of the territory they had lost earlier in the campaign.

During the winter, too, the Russians re-established many of their war factories far to the east. They were able to make new mechanized equipment. A heavy stream of supplies has poured in steadily from Britain and America. The result is, today, the Russians are at least equal with Germany in mechanization in every feature save tanks and it may be that, even in this item, they will catch up before long.

Reports of heavy German plane losses, coming out of Moscow, may be fairly safely credited as true. The Germans occupy a large number of positions which have been entirely cut off from their main line. The only way they have had to provision these isolated strong points has been by plane and transport planes are notoriously vulnerable to fighter attack. It is these planes which have made up much of the plane losses the Russians have claimed.

On the German side of the picture the food situation is bad and growing worse. The great aerial offensive by the RAF has smashed or badly damaged many important war factories. That aerial offensive is growing more powerful and more effective. Morale among large sections of the German army is weakening. Even officers, captured by the Russians, admit they cannot see anything but defeat ahead. And larger and larger numbers of German troops are surrendering at first opportunity.

The war has a long way to go yet before the Allied Nations achieve the victory, but there are some bright spots, some good grounds for optimism in the actual situation today.

Just a Mistake

The Germans executed 72 persons in the Netherlands, The Berlin radio, in explanation of the outrage, said it was due to the victims' "mistaken sense of patriotism."

Presumably the 72 had done, or said, something derogatory to the Nazis. Something, perhaps, designed to hasten the day when their country shall be once more free, when the yoke of the German beast shall have been lifted from their necks.

And all the Germans could see in their attitude was a "mistaken sense of patriotism," meriting death before a firing squad.

Nothing emanating from Berlin has better illustrated the utter callousness, the brutality of mind, that actuates the Nazi. It reveals, once and for all, the complete reversion to the beast, the death in Nazidom of all that lifts mankind above the beasts of the field.

Every normal, decent man knows the spirit of the patriot. It is only the poltroon, the cur, who betrays or deserts his country in time of need. Right thinking men have, in all times, despised the traitor as the lowest of humans.

Yet, under Nazi theory, right becomes wrong, decency is scorned and the foul treacheries are acclaimed as correct and proper.

Perhaps, to the Nazi mind, patriotism should be an exclusive German quality, perhaps they consider no other country worthy of arousing patriotism except Germany.

There is a day coming, coming fast, when that same "mistaken patriotism" which Nazis cannot understand, will play vital part in erasing them, as a vile plague, from the earth.

INTERNED BOMBER CREW

(From The Albany Herald.)

The crew of a United States bomber interned in Russia, where the bomber made a forced landing after taking part in the recent raid on Japanese cities, will be well treated. In the war on Germany, the United States and Russia are allies, but no break has yet occurred between Russia and Japan. However, as between this country and Japan, the sympathy of Russia undoubtedly is with us, and an eventual break between Russia and Japan is considered inevitable.

The first American bomber crew to land on Russian soil has been interned, but the charges are that before the war ends many another American bomber will take off from Russian territory and head for Japan.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

IMPORTANT MADAGASCAR

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Seizure by the British of the French-owned island of Madagascar off the east coast of Africa is not only a strategic move of the first military importance but it is also regarded as the forerunner of the most positive stand Allied nations may be expected to take with respect to the Hitler-dominated Vichy government in the future.

There is no mistaking the elation with which Washington officials received news of the British occupation. It was looked upon as welcome proof that the vital battle for control of communication lines in the Indian Ocean will not be lost to the Japanese by default.

Madagascar is a tremendously important link in our shipping lines to the Indian Ocean. Japan and Germany have been first to use it as a base of operations against all shipping destined for India and the Near East, which includes one of the most important sources of supplying Russia. Because of the dangers to the shorter passage through the Mediterranean and the Suez Canal practically all shipping is now routed around the continent of Africa and through the strip of water separating Madagascar from the mainland.

Occupation of the strategic island means that the Allied nations are beginning to act realistically with respect to Vichy at last. Heretofore the policy has been to lean backwards in placating the fallen French government. We somehow hoped that we would be able to accomplish more in this way. What we were afraid of, of course, was that the French fleet would be turned over to the Germans.

In some military quarters it is believed that the Madagascar coup will move Laval further into the open in this direction—perhaps forcing him to act on his previously expressed conviction that the Axis will win the war and that France's interests are definitely on the side of the Axis.

IGNORE CONSEQUENCES But whatever the consequences we are evidently determined not to allow any such treachery on the part of the French government to interfere with our military plans when it is evident that our interests are vitally at stake. Dakar on the hump of the African west coast will probably be the next French possession to be occupied. After that may come Martinique, French Guiana and other territories still under control of Vichy in this hemisphere.

One consolation to officials here is that regardless of the interpositions placed on the Madagascar occupation by Laval himself, the people of France will understand the meaning of this latest war development.

The French people, it is believed, can be relied on not to be taken in by the tirades of their quivering rulers. They will understand that whatever steps are compelled to take are directed at their oppressor—Hitler. Not until he is beaten down will France regain her freedom.

GET JUMP ON Foe It is refreshing for once to see the Allies get the jump on their enemies. Heretofore we have always waited too long. Hitler and the Japanese have too often been allowed to take the initiative. That has always led to disaster.

The spread of the war to the Pacific and the damage done there by the Japanese owes its origin entirely to quiet consent given by the Vichy government, at Hitler's behest, for the Japanese occupation of French Indo China. But for this tricky little Japs never would have been in position to have made their successful attack on the poorly defended Malay Peninsula and the British south Pacific fortress of Singapore. They quietly moved in a large army of men before we or the British suspected what it was all about. When the conflagration broke on December 7 it was too late to offset the preparations Tokyo had already made.

Before making the Madagascar move we and the British had received word that Laval, the new head of the Vichy government, was engaging in suspicious conferences with the Japanese ambassador to unoccupied France. There were all of the earmarks of another Indo China incident. Consequently the British, abandoning their kid glove policy of the past, moved in without further ado.

SURPRISING OPPOSITION The amazing thing about the Madagascar occupation is that the French should have put up any opposition at all there. We are yet to get the full story, but reports thus far indicate that the French fight against their own former allies—the British—then they did against the Germans at Sedan. This is a sad commentary on the French.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Positions, And Jobs.

You are, let us say, a girl—no, a young lady—who has just completed a college education. You are the daughter of a fine, prominent old southern family. Your father is financially successful and your home is quite a swanky, yet comfortable residence in a fashionable neighborhood. At college you belonged to a good sorority and, at home, you are the center of the "right crowd." You belong to the best clubs and groups, go to the smart dances and are generally one of those who "belongs."

Now your education is over and, in line with modern trends you are contemplating going to work. You are a "modern" girl. You need for every available worker, the patriotic call for every good American to do the fullest possible share in the war effort, impels you to seek active work and cease, as early as possible, being a drone in the United States hive.

So the question I want to put to you, young lady, is this: Would you prefer to "accept a position" with a salary of $20 a week, or "get a job" with wages, in the pay envelope, of $40 a week?

That is quite a timely and vital question a lot of young women of the class described above will be asking themselves before long.

Girls In Assembly Lines.

There are a lot of airplane factories now working as fast as possible, all over this country. A big one, the Bell Bomber plant, is located in the Atlanta area, soon. They have begun building it already, between Atlanta and Marietta. The main building is to be something like a mile in length. That means a big plant.

Now, plant factories in other parts of the country have found that in many of the operations of manufacture women are better employees than men. The feminine hand is defter, the feminine touch more sure in many of the tasks to be done. It is reported that modern plant factories like to see about 60 per cent of their workers of the feminine persuasion.

Plane factories in California have this preponderance of femininity on their assembly lines. Girls in overalls using riveting machines. Girls enthusiastically concentrating on whatever particular job their place in the line calls for. And here is the interesting point. A majority of these girls on the California assembly lines are definitely of the so-called "better classes." The girls who are at least the prototypes of what we call "white-collar workers."

Most of these plane factory girls in California are girls with college educations. Attractive, smart, cultured girls from good families with good homes. And the managements of the factories say the more girls of this type they can get the better pleased they are. For they do better work, are more efficient and produce more, make fewer mistakes, than the ordinary run of factory girls of normal times.

And that, quite definitely, brings me to the point I've had in mind for this column all along. Will girls of our best families be found on the assembly lines of the Bell Bomber plant when it gets into operation? Or will the old southern prejudice against any kind of work for a woman which might damage her fingers—her hair—her dress—her hair-do prevent that?

Personally, I hope the girls will not hesitate a moment to take the jobs if the plant management wants them on the assembly lines. I'd like a condition to come about where it will be quite natural for a woman to make some swanky car, or to drive a car, or to be a visitor, "We are so proud of daughter Margy. She's got a job as a machine riveter. Excuse me, will you, while I fill her lunch box for tomorrow morning."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

To Correct Error

NEW YORK, May 8.—These dispatches have been guilty of an error recently, affecting Wendell Willkie, and today's essay will try to set the record straight.

Some weeks ago, when the Communists were trying to promote a political pardon for Earl Browder, their criminal leader and erstwhile chief of the pro-Axis forces in this country, they quoted Mr. Willkie in a display advertisement in support of this campaign.

Discussing this move, and sharply recalling that until Hitler attacked Stalin, Browder and his party were "savagely anti-American and pro-Axis, I was" deceived by the form of the advertisement, as no doubt it was intended to deceive all readers of the same, into a belief that Willkie had given a statement for this specific purpose.

The fact is, Mr. Willkie has since informed me, that he made no statement for the pardon campaign, but that in March, 1940, in a general discussion of equal treatment of all under law, he leaned to the belief that Browder had been punished for his political beliefs.

Mr. Willkie tells me that the Communists did not misquote him, but that the statement was made currently, but agrees that some, seeing this quotation, came to the conclusion that Mr. Willkie had joined the "free Browder" campaign.

Why Not Kuhn, Too

The fact is, he states, that Willkie has made no public statement with reference to the "free Browder" movement. What it gets down to is that by their quotation of the Willkie statement of two years ago, the "free Browderites" have practically committed themselves to the immediate institution of a "free Fritz Kuhn" movement. A local suggestion would be that under the circumstances those who liberate effect a merger and dub their movement "free Browder and Kuhn."

Kuhn, it may be recalled, was the leader of the anti-American German Bund in New York, who was sentenced to Sing Sing for spending $500 of the Bund's money on a woman. Declaring that he hated Kuhn's doctrines, Willkie said he "couldn't see convicting him of stealing the money which Bund leaders testified Kuhn had a right to spend any way he liked."

Misled by the tenor of the Communist advertisement, I thought Willkie had actually joined the campaign to get Browder a political pardon and wrote that his suggestion that Browder was sentenced in part for his political utterances "a sly misstatement and quite unexpected from a man who could say, as Willkie did, that one of his utterances against participation in the war was deliberately insincere and only campaign oratory."

Withdraw Association

I would like to withdraw the association that Willkie's remarks on Browder were a slight misstatement. I think he was mistaken and that Browder was sentenced under law for an act which was the more offensive to the nation whose laws he constantly invokes because it was committed in contempt of hostilities to this nation, in the interest of another. But I concede to Willkie the right to his opinion that this was a political prosecution.

As to his remark about "campaign oratory," I went too far in saying that he admitted that the utterance in question was "deliberately insincere." I, myself, still think there was an implied admission of insincerity in the phrase, "it was a bit of campaign oratory." But Willkie did not say so and I should not have said he did.

The occasion was his testimony before the senate foreign relations committee in February, 1941, following his return from England. Senator Gerald Nye reminded Willkie that, during his campaign, he had said: "On the basis of his past performance, Roosevelt's past performances with pledges to the people, we may expect to be at war by April, 1941, if he is elected."

Nye asked, "Do you still agree that that might be the case?" and Willkie replied, "It might be. It was a bit of campaign oratory."

Some have said that Willkie showed sincerity rather than insincerity in this remark. That is an attractive argument, but it seems to me that if the remark, itself, was sincere, then the "bit of campaign oratory" couldn't have been.

However, I believe both candidates in that campaign realized that sincerity would have destroyed at once the election the election chance of him who had been rash enough to confront the people with a fact which they understood with cold dread in their hearts, but would not admit to anyone. Our people knew then that Hitler was bringing the war to us and the candidates both knew it and all their pretenses to any hope of escaping war were "campaign oratory."

Tomorrow's Spring.

Am I a soul bewitched, or is this spring the fairest spring of all? Have tree and flower and flower displayed so lavishly, contrived to bring all these lures to life this magic hour?

And whence the deep desire to keep its spell. A very part of me, lest it be lost. Some distant day when war shall sound its knell. And man and nature reap the holocaust?

In all this panorama, wide and free, I sense a warning: "Look your fill today! I shall return, but arm in arm with me. The monster War may treat this self-same way!"

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

ECCESIASITES XI-9 ("Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart.") I stood there by the steps and heard the cadet captain pick up the order, and shout: "Pass in Review!"

The band began to play a march, the squad leaders barked their orders, and the columns began to move.

North Georgia College was honoring 31 young men who were signed up for enlistment in the Naval Air Corps.

They were going as a squadron, the first such college squadron in the southeast. There was about them such a splendor of enthusiasm, honest and spontaneous, that even we dullards looking on felt it and were aroused.

I came back and looked up something in the Book, the quotation from Ecclesiastes. It fitted the occasion. They were rejoicing in their youth. They were cheered by just being alive and they were walking in the ways of their heart.

It is a great, and terrible, time to be young today. Because, once again, when the pinch of destiny is on, the young men must save us—save money if we have it—property, if we have it; jobs, if we have them.

Once again youth must go out and correct the failures and the corruptness of their elders, who always are so wise and usually so cowardly in meeting problems so that one day they all collapse into a war and the young men must go out and fight and save them. I thought of it—watching them march—and knowing that all over the land youth was eager to go out and fight the Japanese and the Germans, knowing in their hearts they will conquer them not for a Fuehrer, not for an in-bred moronic emperor who believes he is descended from the sun god, but for their country and what it means to them.

THINGS TO REMEMBER I stood there watching the north Georgia sun on the flag and on the faces of the young men marching, and I thought about the last two decades.

In England, Stanley Baldwin, answering in the House of Commons charges that the government had failed to make any preparations in 1934, said he had not told the country Germany was rearming in 1934, because, "I cannot think of anything that would have made the loss of the election from my point of view more certain. By waiting . . . we won the election by a large majority."

In England the man who had known all his life he was to be King, quit for a woman typical of the parasitic "society" of Cannes, Palm Beach, and the other resorts for the lilies who neither toil nor spin.

In England Neville Chamberlain came along, representing the thought of those who kept him in office, and watched Spain, Abyssinia, China, Austria, Czechoslovakia, go into the maw.

In France it was no worse, no better. Flaudin, Laval, Deladier, Blum, Georges Bonnet. (Whom has M. Bonnet sold out to today?) The Front Populaire, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity—and Sterility." Always the cynical compromise, always the unwillingness to believe strongly enough in anything to fight for it.

IN OUR OWN COUNTRY We had Harding, weak and dominated. The thieves took the country. The thieves stole millions from the Veterans' Bureau. The thieves stole the oil. The thieves stole with both hands. Harding died. A few thieves went to jail. A few thieves committed suicide. The nation grew cynical and shrugged.

We had Coolidge, from Vermont. He was shrewd in a small way. His words fill more state papers than that of any other president and yet he achieved a reputation for silence because he didn't know anything to say about anything important. He said that the business of government was business. The farmers cursed their losses. The cities filled up with millions and prosperity of a kind.

We had Hoover, who was an engineer, and who knew nothing about government, but much about relief if he could see it as soup in a bowl to be handed to a hungry child. But nothing about how to meet a depression and millions out of jobs.

And all the while one had showed up in England or France or America who had courage, who would fight for what was right and not compromise. The word of man ceased to be worth very much. And civilization is built on the value of a man's word and his bond.

It was no wonder the nations grew corrupt and cynical. And no wonder that Hitler and a Mussolini came. And all that came with them.

We wrote our degradation into our language. "Well, it's all right if they can get away with it." "Oh, well, that's politics." "There is no use trying to do anything about it." "Buy him off." "Cut him in."

We saw gangsters run cities. We saw them run police departments, counties, states. We saw Big Men compromise with corruption rather than fight it.

It was no wonder the disease spread to nations. So, I watched the young men marching, saw their faces and the flag above them. And wondered what we'll do when they come back. Will we compromise and put rascals in office and high places or will we really try to build a nation?

Are they going out again to fight to make a place for more Laval, Chamberlains, Hardings? What about that day they come back?

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise: You are a tomboy, with no sissy in your cosmos, and you refuse to be awed by things and customs merely because they have long white whiskers.

This equipment can make you a smart Aleck and nothing more, but it can also make you a somebody if you use it wisely. You have already overcome the most ancient of human follies.

For thousands of years the human family made no progress because each generation in turn thought the ways of the ancients perfect and made no effort to find better ones.

We have learned better, but we aren't cured yet. As soon as we get accustomed to anything, we accept it as the standard of perfection and ask for nothing better.

Look at my bifocal glasses. I must either wear a newspaper in my lap or throw back my head and look down my nose to read the top line. These aren't the best possible eye glasses.

Look at the common things you use every day—your shoes, your tube of tooth paste, your bed, your purse, your stockings. Do you think any one of them the best it is possible to make? Nothing in public or private life is as good as we could make it. No detail of government is perfect—or even reasonably good. We know all of it could be improved, but we are too ornery to do it.

We could improve every detail of our private lives—our conduct, our posture, our manners, our vocabulary, even our health, but we make little effort to do it.

Your generation need never be out of a job. Not a single item of our civilization is perfect. In fact, all of it is crying for improvement. And fame and fortune await those of you who have the vision and the enterprise to make things better. Love, DAD.

"I usually ask ten cents, Lieutenant Maderas, but I've made a half-price rate for men in uniform!"

There's something thrilling, even inspiring, about a big throng, even if you do get your feet stepped on. I'd have liked to see the Kentucky Derby. Not so much the race itself but the people. Their faces are interesting. So are their clothes. You can see some outlandish garments at a sports event.

But just now I'm thinking about the great music festival to be held tonight at Grant Field—the biggest free show since Noah marched the animals into the ark. Most promoters of entertainment enterprise worry over how to be sure of a big audience. Frank Drake, of The Constitution staff, who looks after most of the details of the annual musical festival, does his worrying in reverse. What he longs for is more standing room in the stadium. It's just too bad to have to turn away the late arrivals.

I was a late arrival last year and I thanked heaven I was six feet tall. I could catch glimpses now and then of the marching bands and their gymnastic baton twirlers from my perch high in the stadium. And what I saw was worth being squeezed between strangers. Especially that moment when the lights were turned off and everybody struck a match. It was a dance of 25,000 fireflies.

It was my fault I didn't get a good seat. Early arrivals did. You will if you start soon enough. If you don't, you'll just have to stand—if there is standing room.

Baths for the Boys.
Citizens of Louisville, Ga., last Sunday night discovered a new way to be nice to soldiers, according to the News and Farmer of that town.

More than a thousand marched in at nightfall, unannounced, and there was little opportunity to hustle up enough food to make much impression on them. But the proprietor of the Hotel Jefferson threw open to them 10 rooms with 10 baths and yelled for all the towels on the premises. And more hot water.

The footsore and weary travelers dunked themselves well, climbed out of the tubs and made room for the next in line. The line was a long one, too.

It's a Great Show If You Get There In Time To Get in.

There weren't enough tubs to go 'round—but they helped.

Reminds me of a time when I attended a convention of the Shrine, along with Forrest Adair Sr., a grand fellow.

I forget whether it was in Kansas City or Los Angeles or some other city. We attended a string of them. But I remember it was hot as the inside of a baked sweet potato—and far more humid.

Friendly Gesture.

Many of the Yaarab Temple nobles and their wives filled a special train which was parked in the railroad yards overnight for lack of hotel room. Mr. Adair and I had reserved a hotel suite. Sleeping in a motionless Pullman was not conducive to slumber and bathing facilities were somewhat inadequate.

Mr. Forrest—no friend ever called him Mr. Adair—and I were leaving for a meeting when an Atlanta woman accosted him in our hotel lobby. They were good friends.

"Going out, Mr. Forrest?" she inquired. "Oh, Mr. Forrest, can I borrow your room to take a bath?"

He assured her the suite was hers for the duration and handed her the key.

"And ask any of your friends," he suggested.

We got back about first cocktail time and found two maids cleaning up the suite.

"Lordy, Mistuh Adair," said one of them. "All the maids and bell-boys knew him after he'd been in a hotel 15 minutes. 'You sho' give a party. I never see so many ladies all by themselves in this hotel. And all wantin' to take a bath—a hot tub bath!'"

"How many do you suppose there were?" asked Mr. Forrest.

"I can't rightly say," answered the maid. "But I done counted 87 wet towels."

Mrs. Channing Cope lives on the Cope farm away out yander on Yellow river and teaches school in Covington. She served a few days ago on the sugar rationing detail and among her applicants were a number of Negroes.

Of one woman she inquired—I can't say why, except that it's on the card—

"How tall are you?"

"Dey tell me," said the applicant, "I's 10 foot, 10 inches."

"Don't be foolish, woman," said the black man behind her. "Hitler hisself ain't that big!"

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

THE DAY OF AUTHORITY.

Sunday's lesson, Matthew 21:12-22, is devoted to the incidents that took place on Monday following Palm Sunday, or the Day of Authority. As our lesson last Sunday was called, it is Monday of Crucifixion week. Jesus had returned to Bethany on Sunday afternoon to spend another quiet night in the hospitable home of Lazarus, Mary and Martha.

Starting early Monday morning to Jerusalem, Jesus went directly to the Temple and cast out those who were polluting His house by bribery and extortion. These were they who charged high rates of exchange for money, and who sold doves for offerings. Jesus overturned the tables on which they carried on this wicked business. He accused them of being thieves.

Here we see the authority of Jesus in dealing with entrenched wrong. He did not assume to control civil government, but He did challenge evil in His house. The authority here revealed was the authority of the Prophet, the Priest, and the King. It vividly recalled to the minds of those familiar with the Old Testament the words of Malachi: "The Lord whom ye seek shall suddenly come to His Temple."

He not only condemned. He cleansed. We shall miss the main point here if we see in this incident a mere driving out of the money-changers and dove-racketers. He cleansed the Temple, even as He will cleanse our hearts. "Mine house shall be called a house of prayer for all people," Isaiah 56:7.

And when He had cleansed the Temple, the blind and the lame came to Him, and He healed them. And the children sang.

Leaving the Temple, Jesus paused, being hungry, near a barren fig tree. And He again gave evidence of His authority by declaring a curse upon that tree, so that it withered away.

Turning to His disciples, He said: "Verily I say unto you, If ye

THE COMMENTATOR LISTENS.—Yes, it's a news cast to which H. V. Kaltenborn, to whom millions listen, is listening. The picture was made prior to Kaltenborn's appearance last night at the municipal auditorium, for the benefit of the Lion's Club milk fund. The noted commentator believes Japan will try—but fail—to invade Australia.

Hitler Has Delayed Too Long For Invasion, Says Kaltenborn

By RALPH MCGILL.

H. V. Kaltenborn, to whom millions listen each week as he comments on war and domestic issues, thinks:

Japan will try, but fail, to invade Australia.

Hitler has waited too long to try an invasion of England. He needs air control to do it. He hasn't got it.

England is able to carry out offensive air raids because of our help and because of English confidence that we can keep up that help.

Russia, with our help, will be able to hold off the German summer offensive.

The main attack must be in Russia and the chief help must be to Russia and England, because when Hitler is beaten or put into retreat, Japan will be comparatively easy.

The early impression of the Pacific naval battle is favorable for the United Nations.

This, in brief, is the survey given by the noted commentator who appeared here last night, before a well-filled Municipal auditorium for the benefit of the Lions Club milk fund. It was his second appearance in Atlanta for the Lions, the first being about a year and a half ago.

Visits Fort Benning.
During the day he was a guest of W. E. Mitchell, and W. H. Wright, a member of the international council of the Lions Clubs; and L. L. Gellerstedt, executive vice president of the Citizens and Southern bank, on a trip to Fort Benning. There he was the guest, with his party, of Colonel Walter S. Fulton, commandant.

In attendance at the dinner were General William Bryden, of the Fourth Corps Area, and General Leven Allen, commandant of the famed infantry school. On the return journey he paid a brief visit to the Warm Springs Foundation, talked with some of the patients, saw the Little White House and hurried back to Atlanta for preparation of his evening lecture.

"I do not believe," he said, "that Japan can take Australia. The battle now in progress is a part of her effort. What encourages me is the report from Tokyo which says that a small detachment of Japanese ships discovered a large detachment of United Nations ships. This means we caught them trying to sneak in close. Both sides have called for more ships. Our bases are closer."

"If Japanese forces can be crushed, especially her airplane carriers, it will mean the United Nations may have superiority in the air and on the sea in the Pacific. Boat for boat we can beat them."

Kaltenborn believes our efforts are just now beginning to be felt and that we are in the early stages of production and of participating in the war. He knows that our bases and our detachments of troops and planes are far-flung and many, and from that he takes encouragement for the long pull.

Laval Cannot Deliver.
As for Vichy, France, he does not believe Laval will be able to deliver much of the French fleet if he tries. He cannot deliver that which is at Martinique; that which is at Alexandria and he cannot deliver more than half of that at Toulon because of the attitude of officers and men, he believes.

"Laval has given us Madagascar," he says. "Let us see what he can give Hitler half as valuable."

Kaltenborn sees Japan gaining a foothold in India but not conquering it. He believes the most helpful thing is that many American sentimentalists about India now see the problem clearer and in proper perspective.

Hitler remains the big objective, he says, and while we must keep in the Pacific, we must keep production climbing in order that England and Russia may keep up activities of a progressive nature against Germany.

Knows Atlanta.
Eager for news always, Kaltenborn carries a portable radio, but is an avid reader of newspapers. "I always feel it's true as soon as I see it in print," he said. He revealed also that he was no stranger to Atlanta when he first

MacDill Field Bomber

Missing, Probably Lost

TAMPA, Fla., May 8.—(P)—An Army bomber from MacDill Field near here, with 10 men aboard, was reported today by the field to have been missing since Wednesday night and probably lost.

The plane left the field Wednesday at noon on a training flight and was due to return Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. It carried enough gasoline to keep it in flight until 3 o'clock Thursday morning.

A continuous search since Thursday morning had failed to night to reveal any trace of it. Officers said unofficially that it might have gone down in the gulf.

Brazilian Rubber

Expansion Planned

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 8.—(P)—Finance Minister Arthur de Sousa Costa announced today that under terms of an agreement with the United States Brazil would apply a $5,000,000 United States credit to rapid expansion of Brazilian rubber production.

The United States, through the Rubber Reserve Company, will purchase all excess Brazilian rubber at a basic price of 39 cents a pound, f. o. b. Belem, he explained.

For purchases in excess of 5,000 tons a premium of 2 1-2 cents a pound will be paid and for any purchases over 10,000 tons the premium will be 5 cents a pound. In addition, Brazil will sell to the United States all excess manufactured rubber goods. The agreement, to last five years, will be subject to periodic price adjustments.

Battle of Jutland Last Great Combat Of Capital Fleets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The last great sea battle in which capital fleets were engaged was the battle of Jutland, fought May 31, 1916, in the first World War.

Make Rubber From Wheat, Wickard Urges

Throws Influence Behind Demands of Farm-Minded Solons.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—Secretary Wickard today threw his influence behind demands from farm-minded lawmakers that large quantities of surplus wheat, corn and other agricultural commodities be converted into synthetic rubber.

The Agriculture Secretary told a Senate Agriculture Sub-Committee that he now was convinced that "use of parts of our reserve stocks of corn and wheat... offers the best possibility of greatly increasing our production of synthetic rubber as early as next year."

Virtually all the synthetic rubber to be produced under government programs already initiated would be manufactured from petroleum bases.

Wickard testified that this country's wheat supply now was the largest in history and that not less than 80,000,000 bushels of this could be converted into rubber for tires badly needed by farmers to maintain their automobiles, trucks and other machinery for new wartime food and production demands.

The cabinet officer's testimony obviously pleased Chairman Gillette, Democrat, Iowa, and Senators Norris, Independent, Nebraska; Wheeler, Democrat, Montana; McNary, Republican, Oregon, of the committee but Wheeler bluntly commented that the Agriculture Department and its scientists had been "asleep at the switch."

Asserting that a world rubber trust had been holding up prices for 10 years, Wheeler told Wickard that if the Agriculture Department had "been on its toes" it would have perfected processes for converting farm products into alcohol, rubber and numerous other articles now needed for the war effort.

In reply, Wickard observed that the Department could spend for experimentation only such funds as congress gave it for that purpose.

Norris and Gillette asked Wickard what he was doing about production of rubber from grains.

The secretary said he had held numerous informal conferences with Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board and other officials who have been awarding government contracts and funds for building of synthetic rubber plants.

Navy Hero Approves His 'Perfect' Baby Son

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP)—A dark-haired, husky young man in a naval uniform leaned over a crib, pulled back a blanket and grinned.

"I thoroughly approve of him," he said. "He is perfect. I give him a Navy E for battle excellency." The "perfect" baby was John D. Bulkeley Jr., whose dad was seeing him for the first time. The father, hero of several exploits against the Japanese, was the naval lieutenant who piloted the torpedo boat which sped General Douglas MacArthur from the Philippines on the first leg of his journey to Australia.

Bulkeley was home on a ten-day furlough.

Five French Hostages Killed, 50 Condemned

PARIS, Occupied France, May 8.—(AP)—The Germans announced today that five hostages had been executed and 50 others condemned to death for an attack on a member of the occupation forces May 2 in the Clichy section.

In addition, an order said 500 persons would be sent to work camps in eastern Germany if the attackers were not discovered.

Although the British grand fleet, commanded by Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, suffered heavier losses than the German high sea fleet, commanded by Admiral Reinhard Scheer, the ultimate result was a victory for the British, since the Germans retired from the high seas, leaving the British in undisputed mastery.

British losses were three battle cruisers—the Indefatigable, the Queen Mary and Invincible—three cruisers and eight torpedo craft, with total casualties of 6,274 men.

German losses were one battleship, the Pommern; a battle cruiser, the Lutzow; four light cruisers and five torpedo craft, with total casualties of 2,545 men.

The German fleet had consisted of 110 vessels and the British had 149. One British officer in the action was the Duke of York, who now is King George VI.

No further major sea battles were fought during the World War and the Germans remained in the safety of Heligoland Bight until the final days of the conflict. Shortly before the Armistice Admiral Scheer ordered the fleet to sea to "break the blockade," but the crews refused to weigh anchor. The German fleet finally was surrendered but was scuttled by the Germans as they were delivering it to the British base of Scapa Flow.

Only isolated actions involving the huge battleships have been fought in this war. Last year the new German battleship Bismarck sank the largest warship afloat, the Hood, but the British in swift vengeance surrounded the Bismarck in the north Atlantic and sank her.

Other losses of British and United States battleships have been from torpedo-carrying planes, submarines and the Pearl Harbor bombing.

Prado Sees Middies Pass in Full Review

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—President Manuel Prado, of Peru, watched 2,400 United States Naval Academy midshipmen pass in full review at Annapolis today, then rushed back to Washington to meet the chiefs of all friendly diplomatic missions as he began a packed four-day program in this capital.

"Our two navies are united more than ever today because they are fighting to maintain the ideals of the two peoples they represent—ideals of liberty, justice and right."

After watching the midshipmen, in full dress and with fixed bayonets, march by in perfect line, President Prado described the display of the Navy's future officers as "magnificent."

Baby Is Kidnaped From Carriage on Street

LONDON, Ont., May 8.—(AP)—Barbara Ann Wood, 7-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wood, was kidnapped today from her carriage on King street in downtown London, police said.

Every available detective and constable was engaged in an immediate search, but late today had failed to find a clue. The mother and father joined police in the hunt, and they could offer no explanation of the act.

16 Jap Ships Sunk, Damaged In Great Battle

HMS Warspite or any other British battleship had been sunk or damaged in the action which now is reported to be proceeding in the Coral sea.

Allied successes newly reported during the day—the thunderous action had started on Monday—included the sinking of a Japanese aircraft carrier and a heavy cruiser and severe damage to another enemy aircraft carrier and another heavy cruiser.

(Unofficial British reports were to the effect that this second carrier also sank, with flames covering her entire length.

This, together with previously announced results, thus formed the known score against the enemy as of last night.

Sunk: An aircraft carrier, a heavy cruiser, a light cruiser, two destroyers, four gunboats and a supply ship.

The U. S. Navy announced two transports or cargo vessels sunk instead of only one supply vessel.

Damaged and believed a total loss: Another aircraft carrier.

Heavily damaged: A heavy cruiser, a light cruiser, a 9,000-ton seaplane tender, a cargo vessel and a transport.

In the dragging hours of exquisite suspense, while the unfolding of the great drama was awaited all over the world, Prime Minister Curtin of Australia went before the house of representatives to assess as much of the situation as was known:

"I have received information from the commander of the Allied forces of the Southwest Pacific that a great naval battle is proceeding in the Southwest Pacific area. This battle arises from operations which I announced earlier today had begun May 4 with some losses to the enemy."

"Sterner Ordeal" Seen.

"What is taking place is of crucial importance to the whole conduct of the war in this theater. I have no information as to how the engagement is developing. I would like the nation to know, however, that there will be on the part of our forces and the forces of the United States that devotion to duty which is characteristic of the naval and air forces of the United States, Britain and this commonwealth."

"One further thing I should say: Nobody at this moment can tell what the result of this engagement will be. If it should go advantageously we will have cause for greater gratitude and our position will be clearer."

"But if we should not have the advantages in this battle which we hope for, we will have a sterner ordeal and greater and graver responsibilities."

"Will Not Decide War"

"This battle will not decide the war. It will determine the immediate tactics which will be pursued by ourselves and the common enemy. Communicate on Naval Success

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Saturday, May 9.—(AP)—The text of the communique issued by General MacArthur's headquarters today:

"The great naval and air battle off the northeast coast of Australia has temporarily ceased. This action represents the continued effort of the Japanese to extend their aggressive conquests toward the south and southeast. First efforts were aimed at expanding his air bases, but our air force has consistently and effectively attacked his plans through the destructions of installations and aircraft."

"Our reconnaissance has revealed the gradual upbuilding of naval transport elements for the co-ordinated attack of combined forces which was initiated several days ago. Our naval forces then attacked in interceptions."

"They were handled with marked skill, fought with admirable courage and tenacity and the enemy has been repulsed. Our attacks will continue."

Australia south to the New Hebrides or New Caledonia.

One suggested that the battle had most likely been joined only after the most mature deliberation on either side; that both knew it would be a great showdown.

This person thus envisaged the course of events:

"The action that started Monday probably began with aircraft from American carriers operating southwest of the Solomon Islands."

"It appears that the attacks did not stop the Japanese, who, with a powerful fleet including battleships as well as aircraft carriers and cruisers, were able to push on toward their objective."

"The bulk of the two fleets then joined battle."

Army Bomber Falls, Sinks in Puget Sound

TACOMA, May 8.—(AP)—An Army bomber from nearby McChord Field Air Base fell into Puget Sound late today and sank with its crew of two captains and a lieutenant-colonel, the Army Air Corps reported.

The plane fell about a half-mile from the mainland near Ketrion Island in Puget Sound, about 20 miles south of Tacoma.

Witnesses said the plane fell from considerable altitude and disappeared almost immediately. The water is deep near Ketrion Island.

It was the second bomber tragedy in this immediate vicinity and the fourth in the Pacific northwest within a week.

Milk Producer Grading Is To Begin on July 1

Grading of all milk producers and distributors who comply with the city's new milk code will begin July 1, Dr. James F. Hackney, assistant city health officer, announced yesterday.

Names of all those who comply will be published so that the public can be informed about those meeting sanitary requirements, Hackney said.

The Atlanta Council Parent-Teacher Association asked that the grading begin July 1, and Dr. Hackney said the department is making its plan to start on that date.

Sub Believed Hit by Vessel It Torpedoed

American Ship Strikes Back at Three Attack- ing U-Boats.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, May 8.—(AP)—Fifty survivors of an American ship have arrived here and reported their gunners probably disabled one of three submarines which sank their vessel after an 8-hour battle.

One member of the ship's gun crew said 12 shells were fired at two of the submarines. He said he believed two hits were scored. One gunner was slightly bruised in the torpedo explosion, but there were no other casualties.

Among those rescued were two English passengers and an airfield dog, "Mickey," which had been at sea 30 months with the ship's master, Captain E. V. Farora.

Survivors Describe 1,000-Mile Voyage.

NORFOLK, Va., May 8.—(AP)—The story of a thousand-mile, 16-day voyage in a lifeboat that twice was swamped and once becalmed for four days was told here today by survivors of a torpedoed American cargo ship.

Thirteen of the ship's complement of 46 were brought ashore in Norfolk last night and 10 more from the same ship were landed today at the naval air station at Cape May, N. J. Naval authorities said two other lifeboats of survivors were landed at Boston more than a week ago, accounting for the entire crew.

Although the vessel carried a nine-man Navy gun crew, Third Mate Clarence T. Wells, of Hopewell, Va., told reporters that there was no opportunity for it to go into action because the attacking submarine did not surface until the merchantman sank.

Two torpedoes smashed into the vessel and it sank within 15 minutes, Wells said. He described the submarine as "only about 150 or 200 feet long" and said it was too small to operate for any length of time without refueling from a mother ship or a land base.

"We were swamped twice," the third mate reported, "once after we were in the boat four hours when caught in cross seas. The second time was two days later in tremendous seas. The air tanks saved us. The first time we were swamped the water was knee deep in the boat. All hands bailed for 20 minutes."

Radioman, Captain Share Heroic Story

KEY WEST, Fla., May 8.—(AP)—A 19-year-old radio operator, just out of Maritime Commission school and on his first voyage, and his captain, a veteran of the sea, became the heroes today of two American merchant ship sinkings as the Caribbean that cost the lives of 55 men.

Fourteen men survived the two sinkings, made public today by the Navy. They composed the seventh and eighth groups of survivors whose safe arrival in port had been announced in Florida in five days, April 27th and 28th in less than three months.

Kenneth Morgan, 19, of Princeton, Ky., was the radio operator. When his ship was torpedoed and burst into flames he stuck doggedly to his wireless key, sending the "S" signal repeatedly until he was overcome by fumes in the smoke-filled radio shack.

At the risk of his own life, Captain Walter Reed, of Oaklyn, N. J., went to find the lad, and carried him bodily to a lifeboat and safety.

Then, fighting his way back aboard the damaged vessel, the captain found Raymond Limpo, messboy from Manila, who was wandering directly into the flames as the smoke billowed about him, obscuring his vision. He, too, was led to the lifeboat.

From the other ship, the four men who survived told how Preston Carpenter, 26, fireman from Beaumont, Tex., saved the life of a fellow Texan, Ralph Harris, able-bodied seaman from Port Arthur, by supporting him in the water for more than three hours.

Harris had suffered first degree burns and was near collapse. Carpenter reported that there were two German submarines, and that both machinegunned crew members who fled to the forecastle, trying to escape the raging flames.

"I want to sail on a merchant vessel that is armed," he said, "so that when these babies begin shooting, we can give them some of their own medicine. Four of the 10 rescued from the other merchantman said they would join the Navy and hoped to get on a sub-chaser or a PT boat."

Survivors Landed At Bermuda Port

HAMILTON, Bermuda, May 8.—(AP)—Eight Canadians and a number of West Indian survivors of a torpedoed Allied ship have been brought here after drifting six days in a lifeboat.

Dutch Ship Rescues 27 Off Surinam

PARAMARIBO, Dutch Guiana, May 8.—(AP)—Twenty-seven crewmen of a torpedoed American ship who were sighted in a lifeboat off this coast yesterday were landed here by a Dutch vessel sent to rescue them, the Antia News Agency said tonight. None of the men was injured.

NO CYCLING IN DARK.

VICHY, France, May 8.—(AP)—The Germans have forbidden bicycling after dark in almost half of occupied France in an effort to stem anti-Nazi terrorism. "The authors of these attacks each time had bicycles at their disposal," the order said.

Sheds Blood for Her Country— While Seeking Rationing Book

TONAWADNA, N. Y., May 8.—(AP)—A middle-aged woman walked into a high school where blood was being donated to the Red Cross blood bank, joined a line of other women, was asked some questions and a doctor and nurse withdrew a pint of blood.

Lifting herself from the cot, she asked: "What am I doing this for?"

"For the soldiers and sailors, of course," the nurse replied.

"All I wanted was a sugar-rationing book," the bewildered woman explained as she discovered she entered the wrong school.

Ted R. Sutton Listed by Navy As 'Missing'

Wife Notified Here; Was Serving With Atlantic Fleet.

Ted R. Sutton, 38, of 1411 Eberhart street, S. W., metal smith second class in the Navy, is "missing in action in the performance of duty," his wife was informed by the Navy Department yesterday.

Sutton, who was employed in the trucking department of the Railway Express Company here for six years, enlisted in the Navy January 19. He was known to have been serving with the Atlantic fleet, but the Navy Department did not divulge details of the action in which he was missing.

Sutton was a native of Canton and had lived in Atlanta since 1930. Before coming here he lived on the Pacific coast for several years, and had served one previous term of enlistment in the Navy, obtaining his discharge in 1925.

Surviving, in addition to his wife, are his mother, Mrs. Georgia Anne Sutton; a sister, Mrs. Charles Atkinson; three brothers, Thurston Sutton, of Canton, and Waldo and Sherman Sutton.

Atlantan Succumbs To Truck Injuries

C. F. Parks, 76, of 94 Eleventh street, N. E., died yesterday morning at Grady hospital a short time after being knocked down by a truck as he crossed Cain at Williams street, police reported.

Parks, Radio Patrolman J. B. Bishop Jr. and J. B. Thrasher, reported, was struck by a truck operated by Paul Smith, Negro, of a Thurmond street address.

Police said the truck had swung out into the street to avoid striking another vehicle, and the rear end of the truck struck Parks. A charge of reckless driving was placed against the truck driver.

Girl Reporter Now Aviation Cadet—Almost

Recruiting Officers Sell Her on Idea of Signing Up.

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.

Today I am an aviation cadet—almost. And there's no wonder I was so anxious to enlist. They painted a beautiful picture all about the clothes I'd wear, the money I'd make, the food I'd eat, and the service reward I'd get after the duration—and six months. They said I'd get in at $75 a month which is $54 more than the buck private gets. They said I'd have uniforms made of the same material as General MacArthur's, food that is the best, olives and pickles and big thick steaks, even with mushrooms sometimes. They said I'd get a $10,000 insurance policy paid for me all the seven or eight months I was in training, that I'd get a $150 uniform allowance as soon as I made the grade for a commission, and that I'd get $500 a year for each year's service in one lump sum at the end of the war.

Free Medical Care. They promised free medical and dental care and made the United States Army Air Corps supremacy drive look like the best unit in the world.

We checked the age—18 to 26 inclusive. I measured okay on that. Then other requirements. Vision 20-20, minimum height 60 inches, maximum 76. Maximum weight 200 pounds, minimum 105. Normal color vision. Everything was well above passing. They figured the educational requirements were satisfactory, for even though the college degree would help it wasn't necessary. I had to pass a mental examination of 150 questions, most of which were vocabulary drills and the other fourth or less of algebra, thinking qualities and current events quizzes. Everything was jam-up.

They even got down to the special division and said my qualifications for a photography officer were satisfactory. They require some special college work and experience as an amateur or professional photographer, a transcript of college records. They almost had me packed up for a 12 weeks' course at the photography school, Lowry Field, Denver, Colorado.

Women Out. But the United States Army Air Corps has no place for women—yet.

These two officers from Turner Field, Albany, who came to Atlanta to help Lieutenant Julian Delapierre enlist men at Emory University, sold me just as they are convincing numerous men every day that every man between the ages of 18 and 26 soon will see service in some capacity. They tell the boys that the Air Corps is the best place because this scrap is a war in the air and every effort to make United States fliers the strongest and the best will be a step toward the end of this fight.

Major John H. Spangler, president of the board of Turner Field, and his assistant, Lieutenant Russell W. Betts Jr., spent yesterday and will remain today at the Emory chapel to talk with boys, to help them decide whether or not to enlist as aviation cadets, to give them mental and physical examinations and swear them into the service.

Applicants may call at any time at the Army Cadet Aviation Selection Board, 301 Healy building, for similar examinations.

Evans Firms Senate Committee Approves Only Bidders, Witness Says

Mrs. Vines Denies Any Money Was Paid Rivers.

A witness in the trial for alleged conspiracy to defraud the state of Dr. Hiram W. Evans yesterday admitted that four companies represented by the former Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan were the only ones to bid for an order of sand asphalt for a road-building project in Brantley county. The order was for $150,000 worth of the material.

The witness, Mrs. Mary S. Vines, a partner in one of the Evans family companies, protested that other companies had been invited to bid. At this point, Judge Virlyn B. Moore, of Fulton superior court, adjourned court until Monday.

In answer to an earlier question by Special Prosecutor James A. Branch, Mrs. Vines denied that the Eastern Construction Company, the parent Evans concern, had ever paid any money to former Governor E. D. Rivers or O. G. Glover, former state purchasing agent, both accused of conspiring with Evans in the sale of asphalt to the state. On cross-examination, she said that she did not know what Dr. Evans, manager of the company, might have done. Mrs. Vines also agreed that the four companies, represented by Evans, bidding for the Brantley contract, were supposed to be in competition with one another.

Mrs. Vines was on the stand all day, but a conflict of state and federal laws appeared imminent when United States Marshal Charlie Cox appeared in court with a federal subpoena for the witness to appear at noon to testify in the trial of John W. Greer, charged with violation of the anti-trust laws in the sale of asphalt to the state of Georgia. Judge Moore said that Federal Judge Marvin Underwood had agreed to excuse Dr. Evans, also under federal subpoena, and Cox left with Mrs. Vines still in the hands of the state court.

BANK CLEARINGS UP. Bank clearings yesterday totaled $15,700,000 as compared with $12,800,000 for the corresponding day last year, the Atlanta Clearing House Association announced.

Senate Committee Approves Army Corps for Women

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—An army corps for women, on a voluntary enlistment basis, to attend to many of the manifold non-combatant jobs that the Army needs done was approved unanimously today by the Senate Military Committee.

The measure, already passed by the house, now needs only senate approval to send it on to the White House. It would provide a uniformed auxiliary in which women from 21 to 45 would be invited to enlist.

They would be assigned to such tasks as operating the aircraft warning service, clerical work, and jobs as machine operators, telephone, telegraph, teletype and switchboard operators, pharmacists, dietitians, tellers, supervisors in information centers, cooks, stewards, laundry workers and messengers.

Some 6,000 volunteers are already employed, without pay, in the Aircraft Lookout Service, and the Army contemplates increasing the number to 10,000 by assigning members of the new auxiliary to it.

The women would wear a uniform the design of which has still to be announced. They would be subject to regular army discipline and would receive the same pay and allowances as the men of the Army.

Enlistment for the new auxiliary is in no way associated with plans which have been discussed for a voluntary or compulsory registration of women for war work. President Roosevelt announced a week ago that such registration was not necessary at present, although it might become so at some future time.

Prior to today's action, the committee had approved a similar bill. When it was brought up on the senate floor, however, Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, attempted to substitute a bill opening the regular Army Reserve Corps to women. Some contended this would subject the women to combatant service, and the whole subject was returned to the committee for study.

Manufacturers' Lumber Sales May Be Frozen

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—The War Production Board was reported today to be contemplating the freezing of all manufacturers' sales of soft wood construction lumber, except to government buyers, to conserve supplies for the Army, Navy and shipbuilding program.

Official confirmation was lacking, but reliable sources said the action could be expected "very soon." The freeze would apply to future production and to distributors' stocks as well as manufacturers', but not to retail sales, it was said.

The freeze will be temporary, these sources reported, and preliminary to creation of a lumber allocation system which would apportion available supplies between the Army, Navy and Maritime Commission, on the one hand, and other permitted construction on the other.

WPB officials were said to feel that lumber stocks in the hands of retail dealers would be sufficient to care for the needs of defense housing and other authorized construction until the allocation quotas were worked out. The contemplated order was foreshadowed, observers believed, in Tuesday's appeal by War Production Director Donald M. Nelson to logging and sawmill operators and their employees to launch a "full program of maximum production of all species of soft wood lumber in common board, dimension and structural timber sizes and grades."

Walker Bans Weekly Paper From Mails

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—In his third move against allegedly seditious publications within a month, Postmaster General Walker tonight temporarily banned from the mails "Publicity," a weekly newspaper at Wichita, Kas., pending a hearing May 21 to determine whether it should be permanently barred.

Elmer J. Garner, described as publisher and editor of the paper, and his son, James F. Garner, editorial assistant, were indicted by a federal grand jury at Kansas City, Kas., a week ago on 11 counts under the so-called sedition section of the 1917 espionage act.

Walker moved against "Publicity" after receiving a letter from Attorney General Biddle advising him that "this publication has engaged for a long time in a sustained and systematic attack upon public morale and activities of the government directly related to the war effort."

Captain Tells Marblehead's Story Simply

Brings 'Her Wounds of War Home for Healing.

AT AN EASTERN PORT, May 8.—(AP)—Over the rat-tat-tat of riveting machines, Captain Arthur G. Robinson told today in simple sailor language how he sailed the light cruiser Marblehead halfway around the world to "bring her wounds of war home for healing."

Attacked last February 4 by more than 37 Japanese planes while on a defensive mission to intercept a large, well protected Japanese convoy which was en route for a landing at Macassar, the cruiser's rudder was put out of action.

"We steered her with the motors," grinned the tanned 50-year-old captain, who spent 60 continuous hours on the bridge without sleep during and after the battle. "We'd tickle her with the left propeller and then with the right and when we had her straight, we'd go full speed ahead."

15 Men Killed. With 15 men killed in the bombing, the Marblehead limped to a Netherlands Indies port where temporary repairs were made, then proceeded to Ceylon for additional repairs. Another stop followed at South Africa before the Marblehead was considered sufficiently seaworthy for its trip to the United States.

When the Japanese planes intercepted the United Nations' naval force, the ships scattered, and the Marblehead was hit.

"After we were hit the ship was in a very serious situation because we were badly flooded, had two fires, the main deck was covered with fuel oil and water," Captain Robinson said. "We had difficulty moving the wounded and the sick bay was completely demolished and we had to improvise a new one."

"The attack continued while all hands were trying to stop the rush of water. Antiaircraft batteries were blazing away. I was trying to maneuver the ship as best as I could. My reaction was fatalistic. There was no going in circles and that's all that went to it."

Captain Robinson's description of the battle may have seemed laconic, matter-of-fact, but his praise of his crew was anything but. "Nothing, not even the heroism of every man Jack aboard has impressed me so much as the cheerfulness of this crew of mine," he said.

"They were called upon to work day and night in fuel oil, water and debris. They worked, ate, and—when they could find a place to lie down—slept in their oil-soaked clothing. There was neither time nor fresh water for bathing....

"Why they were even joking when the bombs were crashing all around. The jokes? Well, I guess you'd better not have them now. But they were funny at the time."

Even as he told the Marblehead's saga, passageways of the sturdy 7,050-ton vessel rang with the steady racket raised by hundreds of workmen fitting her for further war duty.

Mother's Banquet Held By Kinzoelian Class

Kinzoelian Sunday School class of Kirkwood Baptist church held its sixth annual mother's and daughter's banquet last night at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Convoy Blasted By Canadian, Dutch Fliers

Eight Out of 12 Ships Plastered With Bombs Off Holland.

LONDON, May 8.—(AP)—The RAF's Canadian "demon squadron" and Dutch pilots plastered bomb hits on eight out of 12 ships in a heavily protected convoy off the Dutch coast during an overnight continuation of the British air offensive which, Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair declared today, will lead directly to British invasion of the continent.

The "Demons," who in seven days have damaged at least 19 enemy supply ships and a destroyer, reported hitting seven ships in the convoy and Royal Netherlands Naval Air Service pilots the eighth.

An American with the Canadian's, Pilot Officer G. L. Mosier, of Waverley, N. Y., made one of the hits.

Today the German air force made a 20-second reprisal attack on a southeast coast town, hitting a school building with a bomb and killing a number of children. Streets were sprayed with cannon and machinegun fire.

Spotted Near Helder. Wing Commander A. C. Brown, of Winnipeg, the "Demons" commander, told the story of the convoy attack by the squadron of United States-made Hudson bombers. He said the 12 ships, heavily escorted by flak ships and moving north in line-ahead formation, were spotted near the former Dutch naval base of Den Helder, at the northwestern tip of Holland.

"It was just getting dark but they spotted us as we went in," he said. "They put up a wicked barrage. I attacked first, choosing what appeared to be the largest ship."

"I dived to the deck and unloaded my bombs. Four landed smack on the ship's deck. As we flew clear there was a terrific flash."

The rear gunner then reported that a huge column of water rose over the ship's stern and Brown said: "I think I must have blown the stern right off."

"Each Took a Ship." The other planes came in and "each took a ship—all fair sized fellows," said Brown. "In quick succession there were four bright orange flashes along the line of the convoy. Each flash meant a direct hit."

Still other ships were hit in this and in a second attack several hours later.

Because of the darkness the fliers claimed none of the ships as sunk, but a Beaufighter on patrol this morning sighted two seriously damaged vessels, one beached and the other still on fire with her deck almost awash, under tow of two tugs.

All the Canadians returned safely but two other planes were lost.

The air minister, speaking at Birmingham today, promised the German air force "a terrible summer" and said "We must give it no rest; we must hammer it out of shape. When that will be how long it will take—I cannot tell, but then will come the invasion."

"The time has come when we are beginning to hit back hard but on a scale which still only foreshadows the force of the Anglo-American bombing effort to come."

WAINWRIGHT DAY. MACON, Ga., May 8.—(AP)—The Macon Civitan Club telegraphed other clubs in the state today asking they designate May 11 "Wainwright Day" in honor of General Jonathan Wainwright who commanded American and Filipino forces on Bataan and Corregidor.

The objective is for every man, woman and child to buy a war bond or stamp on that day.

ATLANTA'S ENROLL AT MAXWELL FIELD Enrolled in the last class to enter the Air Corps Replacement Training Center at Maxwell Field, Ala., are several Atlantans. TO BE HONORED—The Rev. John L. Yost, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, will be honored at special services at that church Friday night in commemoration of his 25th year as Lutheran minister.

Rev. John Yost To Be Honored Friday Night

25th Anniversary as Lutheran Pastor To Be Observed.

The Rev. John L. Yost, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, will be honored at special services at 8 o'clock next Friday night commemorating his 25th anniversary as a Lutheran minister. Dr. Walton Harlowe Greener, of New York, general secretary of the United Lutheran Church in America, will speak.

During his 13 years as pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, Mr. Yost has counted many achievements. The church plant, occupying a half block at Peachtree and Fourth streets, was acquired under his leadership. The membership has grown to such proportions overflow crowds attend all services.

A former vice president of the Atlanta Christian Council and former president of the Atlanta Evangelical Ministers' Association, Dr. Yost now is serving his second year as president of the Georgia-Alabama synod, United Lutheran Church in America.

Born in Salisbury, N. C., Mr. Yost was educated at Roanoke College, Roanoke, Va. He served pastorates in both the Carolinas and Tennessee before coming to Atlanta.

Archie Lindsey, Quiz Master, Called to Army

Bible Program Conductor To Be Given Farewell Tomorrow.

Archie Lindsey, popular quiz master on the "Bible Quiz" radio program, heard at 1 o'clock each Sunday afternoon over WGST, has had the tables turned on him. For Archie, after tomorrow's program, will be answering questions for Uncle Sam—he's been called into the Army.

The quiz program, which got its start some eight months ago under Lindsey's leadership, has attracted a wide audience among people of Georgia and many out-of-state listeners. Questions pertaining to the Bible are sent in by listeners and are put to a group of young people from various churches of Atlanta. Lee Burge will be the new quizzer.

Tomorrow's broadcast will feature a farewell to Lindsey, a tribute to men in the service and Mother's Day.

The Business Opportunity column in the Want Ads of The Constitution furnishes a fertile field for small investment and profitable effort.

Funds Will Be Sought To Aid Lutheran Pastors An appeal for funds to aid Lutheran ministers now serving the Army, Navy and Marine Corps as chaplains, will be made in the Lutheran Church of the Messiah and the Church of the Redeemer at services tomorrow.

The funds will be used to furnish prayer books, hymn books, literature and to furnish the recreational centers which are operated by the Lutheran church groups. All the money which is not used for this cause will be apportioned among foreign missions and Lutheran refugee services.

'Adam and Fallen Men' Lesson-Sermon Topic "Adam and Fallen Men" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read tomorrow in the Christian Science churches of Atlanta.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "So God created man in his own image, the image of God created he him; male and female created he them."

Fairfield Yard Building Two Ships a Week

16 Different Ways Being Used To Boost Merchant Fleet.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 8.—(AP) Every week two brand-new 10,000-ton "Liberty" freighters are sliding down the ways of the Fairfield Shipbuilding yard of the Bethlehem Steel Company to increase the United States Merchant Marine.

On 16 different ways which have mushroomed into a wartime shipyard employing 25,000 men from a Maryland swamp 16 months ago, 24 new American freighters have already been launched.

The first, the "Patrick Henry," is already in the Middle East. The 24th was launched two days ago. Keels for 16 more have been laid. By the end of 1943, a total of 172 identical ships will have been built for the Maritime Commission.

Today it takes 110 days to build a "Liberty," but J. M. Willis, vice president and general manager of the Fairfield yard, told correspondents on the National Association of Manufacturers war industries tour that he hoped to cut that time down to as low as 75 days.

The secret of rapid construction, Willis said, is application to the shipbuilding industry of the same principles as are now turning out hundreds of bombing and fighting planes on aviation production lines.

In the shipyard's fabrication shops, units of the ship are built on specifications to conform exactly to their use in the vessel as a whole. These parts, weighing as high as 15 tons, are assembled in the shop, then shipped by flat car to the nearby ways and lifted into place by cranes.

Quezon To Set Up New Capital In Washington

Philippine President Arrives on Coast With Family, Officials.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—This city has been chosen provisional capital of the Philippine Commonwealth, it was disclosed today following the arrival in San Francisco of President Manuel L. Quezon.

A war refugee from his own Japan, Quezon occupied capital city of Manila, Quezon was accompanied by his family and several cabinet members of the insular government, including Vice President Sergio Osmena.

The inter-department announced that after a rest the Filipino leader would come to Washington and establish headquarters for the commonwealth government. He has headed for more than six years.

From Washington, Quezon is expected to play a prominent role in the fight to regain the Philippines.

His unswerving loyalty to the United States in the war crisis and in the face of Japanese handshakes, and the heroic fight made by the Filipino forces as a part of the Army of the United States assured the diminutive, 63-year-old President a warm welcome.

More than a score of past visits to this country in quest of Philippine independence have made Quezon a friend of Mr. Roosevelt, government officials and members of congress. Vice President Osmena likewise is a close friend.

Quezon was last here four years ago, soon after the commonwealth regime was set up as a transition to the complete independence which congress approved for 1946. Then, he was elected by Tokyo and was received by Emperor Hirohito.

Quezon's party included Major General Basilio J. Valdez, former chief of staff of the Philippine Army, and one-time head of the constabulary who is secretary of national defense in the provisional cabinet and Colonel Andres Soriano, Philippine capitalist who is secretary of finance.

Funds Will Be Sought To Aid Lutheran Pastors An appeal for funds to aid Lutheran ministers now serving the Army, Navy and Marine Corps as chaplains, will be made in the Lutheran Church of the Messiah and the Church of the Redeemer at services tomorrow.

The funds will be used to furnish prayer books, hymn books, literature and to furnish the recreational centers which are operated by the Lutheran church groups. All the money which is not used for this cause will be apportioned among foreign missions and Lutheran refugee services.

'Adam and Fallen Men' Lesson-Sermon Topic "Adam and Fallen Men" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read tomorrow in the Christian Science churches of Atlanta.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "So God created man in his own image, the image of God created he him; male and female created he them."

Urges Farmers To Mark Heavier Weight Hogs BERKELEY, Cal.—Marketing of heavier hogs is one of the fastest means of obtaining the greatest pork production called for by the Food for Victory program, declared Professor E. H. Hughes, of the University of California College of Agriculture, in a recent message to farmers.

Childhood Friends To Attend Eleanor Clay at Her Wedding

By SALLY FORTH.

ON THE EVENING of May 30, when Eleanor Clay and Lawson Calhoun are united in marriage, the beautiful young bride-elect will be surrounded by a bevy of her childhood friends and former schoolmates. The wedding, you know, will be solemnized at 8 o'clock at St. Mark Methodist church by Dr. Lester Rumble. While the wedding guests assemble a musical interlude will be presented on the organ by Hugh Hodgson.

For her matron of honor Eleanor has chosen Lawson's sister, Marion (Mrs. Bickerton) Cardwell. One of the bride-elect's former classmates at Bradford Junior College, Hope De Pew, of St. Louis, will be maid of honor. Hope, who has made a host of friends on previous visits to Eleanor, will arrive on May 20, to be on hand for the bridal festivities. Nanine (Mrs. Grady Jr.) Clay, of Louisville, Ky., who will be a bridesmaid, will "put in her appearance" around May 23. The other bridesmaids will be Emily Anderson, Mary Jane (Mrs. Wharton) Mitchell, Ann Egan, Caroline Yundt, and Margie Troutman. Eleanor and Ann date their friendships from high school days at N. A. P. S. Emily, Caroline, Margie, and Eleanor, however, became friends in the first grade.

Dr. Grady E. Clay will give his daughter in marriage and they will be met at the altar by Lawson and his brother, Captain Phinizy Calhoun Jr., U. S. A., who will act as best man.

Lawson's attendants will include Lieutenant George Hightower, Bickerton Cardwell, Grady E. Clay Jr., of Louisville; James H. Hightower, of Texas; Rutledge, of Houston, Texas. Serving as ushers will be Dr. James E. Paulin, Dr. J. Mason Baird, Harry McCord, Ward Wight, Charles Roberts Jr., Stuart Witham, William Kiser, and J. G. Oglesby.

After the ceremony, the terrace at Brookhaven, the Capital City Country Club, will form the setting for the reception at which Dr. Clay will be host for members of the bridal party, and out-of-town guests.

DO YOU KNOW?

That the essay selected and submitted for the Rich's prize contest by North Fulton High school and written by 16-year-old Clara Fowler was on "Red Hills"? That every subject chosen were men who have been of great service to Georgia? ... That when Alice Davis and Jimmie Burke ran out of the Driving Club amid a shower of rice following their wedding reception, that the bride lost her cap and veil and it was recovered by a member of the wedding party? ... and that every guest attending the reception was served champagne to toast the bride and groom? ... That Mabel Brown spoke before the Rotary Club of Cuthbert on her book, "Red Hills," last Tuesday? ... and that "Red Hills" is now in its fourth printing? ... That every morning at a certain hour a flyer from the Camp Gordon Air Base salutes the kindergarten pupils of Belle Meador and Lena Knox (Mrs. Tom) Cassells at the Meador home on Peachtree road? ... and that Belle and Lena have outlined a large "V" in the yard for the children to stand in to return the flyer's salute? That Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe D. Wall recently entertained the 60 boys and girls at Hillside Cottages with movies in technicolor shown by Mr. Wall?

Miss Raap Weds Luther Grubbs

DAVENPORT, Iowa, May 8.—The marriage of Miss Jean L. Raap, of this city, and Private Luther L. Grubbs, of the Davenport Armory and Atlanta, Ga., took place this evening at 7:30 o'clock at St. Paul's Lutheran church. Rev. J. A. Miller officiated.

Mrs. S. C. Van Alstine was her sister's maid of honor, and wore a navy blue jacket dress with black accessories. Her flowers were pink roses and white sweet-peas.

The lovely bride was given in marriage by her father, William Raap. She wore a smart jacket dress of light blue crepe with navy blue accessories. A spray of white rosebuds and pink sweetpeas completed the ensemble.

Mrs. Raap chose for her daughter's wedding a model of navy blue with black accessories, and her flowers were white roses.

The bride received her education in the schools of Davenport, where she is a popular member of the younger set.

Private Grubbs is the son of Mrs. George W. Grubbs, of Atlanta, and the late Mr. Grubbs. He attended school in Atlanta, and prior to going to Davenport was stationed at Camp Blanding, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis Mark Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Ector Davis recently celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary at their home on Kent street, S. E.

The ceremony at which Mr. and Mrs. Davis renewed their marriage vows, was performed by Rev. E. M. Altman, assisted by Rev. W. C. Sistar. An improvised altar of spring flowers flanked on either side by seven-branched candelabra formed the decorations.

The candles were lighted by the two older sons of the couple, James Davis and Richard Davis.

Mrs. Davis wore an aqua lace and taffeta model and her flowers were pink rosebuds and white carnations. A musical program was presented by Miss Martha Eggle, Earl Cairn and Miss Ruth Altman, vocalist.

A reception followed the ceremony. Guests were received by Mrs. George Ivy and Mrs. Walter J. Sims. The table was centered with a ladder marking each five years of the couple's wedded life. Placed at the foot of the ladder were a miniature bride and groom. Mrs. Claude Ghessling and Mrs. George Mooney presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Davis is the former Miss Leone Chambliss, of Parrott.

Stretching Exercise To Trim The Midriff

By Ida Jean Kain.

If your weight looms large at the midriff, it's stretching exercises for you. You can—and most likely you need to—take several inches off your waistline and tone, firm and flatten your abdominal girdle.

You can feel the effect of stretching within a week. It doesn't mean you have to be drastic about your program. Some of the showy, difficult exercises like lying on your back on the floor and slowly raising and lowering both legs are not worth the doing. On the other hand, exercises which involve a simple stretch or contractile movement not only are easy to do but are highly efficient when it comes to streamlining the midsection.

Any woman who will do this set of stretching exercises every day can bring her waistline to terms and acquire a firm muscular girdle:

1. Position: Lying on your back on the floor with legs straight down and arms on floor overhead. Movement: Stretch your right leg across the left and touch toes to floor on the far side. Hold for a second and give an extra stretch to the midriff muscles. Relax, then stretch left leg across the right and touch toes to floor beyond. Repeat six times, relaxing between times.

2. Position: Same, stretched on floor to full extension.

Movement: Flex right knee and bring thigh up toward chest. As you do this, dig the small of the back into the floor. Hold for a second, then slowly force kneecap over to the left and touch it to floor. Return to chest, relax, and repeat with left knee flexed.

3. Position: Lying on back on floor, legs straight down and arms stretched up on floor. Movement: Inch around until your body forms an arc, with knees and elbows fairly straight, and hands and feet as close together as you can get them. Hold it for a moment and then work your way back in the opposite direction. Try to keep your back and hips on the floor throughout.

4. Position: Still on your back on the floor, but with arms straight out at sides on floor, shoulder level. Movement: Keeping legs together, move them up until they touch your chest, then turn hips side-ward and straighten with a rolling motion. Have legs straight down, then swing up to other side and flex again toward chest. This exercise does two things. It stretches your waistline and massages the back of the hips into a smooth line. Repeat 20 times.

If it is fat that pads your waist, a few pounds off will slim you down by inches. Follow this protective reducing menu:

Grandma Comes Into Her Own With a Vital Place in Hollywood

By Harold Heffernan.

HOLLYWOOD, May 9.—Comes May 10 and another Mother's Day. Madcap town on the Gold Coast will celebrate the occasion along with the rest of the world—and is proud of it.

It took Hollywood a long time to bestow a Hays office seal on motherhood. But it finally learned that an institution accepted elsewhere as fine and normal was also quite O. K. for movie queens.

Now, of course, the hand that rocks the cradle virtually rules the screen world. Such charmers as Jane Wyman, Joan Crawford, Veronica Lake, Constance Bennett, Loretta Young, Joan Benne, Geraldine Fitzgerald find that neither the 2 a. m. bottle nor the Parent-Teacher Association interfere with screen glamor.

Proud as it is of the mothers, Hollywood could and should go even better. The town is actually a Mecca for grandmothers. And what's wrong with grandmothers? Why not a grandmother's Day?

Certainly this is the only spot in the world where a woman old enough to be a grandmother can make more than $1,000 a week doing anything—but on the sound stages of Hollywood they get sums like that merely for being elderly ladies. And usually they are grandmothers. Fact is, come to look at it, a grandmother is a very old person in the picture business. Review some of the recent big pictures and see how grandma has been glorified. "Sergeant York" for all its gripping story and academy award winning performance by Gary Cooper, would have proved a lot less potent without a character actress of Margaret Wyckoff's ability in the mother role. It was her deeply-lined delineation that seemed to make the whole story right.

Same sort of thing happened in "Grapes of Wrath," in which Henry Fonda starred—but where would that story have been without Jane Darwell as Ma Joad?

The number of movies May Robson has both saved and made can't be counted on the fingers of a regiment. Wry and gentle at the same time, "Muzzie May," has taken the plot of many a picture in her expert hands and made it spin—and as attractive as the Latin girls were in the "Four Daughters" series, they'd have been rather high and dry without their old lady.

Currently, the elderly ladies are doing smartly by themselves, and getting a lot more steady work than many of their younger sisters who sign endorsements for beauty creams.

Bette Davis' "Now Voyager," a tensely interesting psychological drama, depends entirely for plot developments upon the character of the actress who plays Bette's mother. In this instance, she is Gladys Cooper, who'll have to do it with a bit of makeup in order to acquire years. Her part is so strong that it could easily steal the show against any actress of less ability than Bette.

Elizabeth Patterson, who is usually quite shocked by the going-ons of the younger generation, is currently working with Fredric March and Veronica Lake in "I Married a Witch," and has her finger very firmly on the plot. Mable Page in "Young and Willing," Florence Bates in "Happy-Go-Lucky," Adeline De Walt Reynolds (who made her debut in "Street of Chance," Ethel Griffies in "Love and Kisses," Caroline, Madame Ouspenskaya in "Kings Row" and Queenie Vassar, who is usually working in several pictures at once, a few of the dear old things who ordinarily do a day's work that would exhaust many athletes. Laura Hope Crews and Alison Skipworth, both well past 60, get as much work and do as much work as any glamor girl in her twenties, you can mention.

In that sense, the movies have actually extended the ladies' lives by a matter of 10 years or so. You see grandmothers in all styles on the screen today from the Whistler's mother type to the acid-tongued, bumptious May Robson kind, but you also see them in evening clothes and up-swept hairdos.

Odd thing about actresses is that even the youngest of them want to play old ladies. Witness Joan Leslie, 17, who does a 65-year-old woman in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," and Barbara Stanwyck, who plays herself at the age of 100 in "The Great Man's Lady."

Yes, the elderly ladies are showing their mettle in Hollywood, all right. And it looks as if the rest of the country is well satisfied to imitate them. So, a happy mother's day—but let's not forget their mothers, too!

Woman Will Find It Unwise To Ignore Opinion of Society

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

Three years ago my husband deserted me and my three children after 10 years of married life, which he made a living hell for us with drunken abuse and non-support. We have not seen him since. My divorce was final some time later. I was working at that time to support myself and the children, and have continued to do so since then. We have never had so much as a holiday greeting from him.

About two months after he left us, I met a man who has proved himself to be everything I ever imagined—a man who could make a woman happy. Since I do not drink, I find little pleasure in associating with people I usually meet, therefore I spent most of my time, outside working hours, reading. My children are boarded where they have the most exclusive care and training and are with me only on weekends. They are healthy and happy and I find pleasure in working and planning for their future.

The idea of marrying again is something which I have never considered, and I do not think I could trust the care of my children to another man, even though I am only 31 years old and find my struggle hard. Here is the reason: I am called a fool by my friends. This man whom I have mentioned before has, in the past two and a half years, proved himself a friend in every sense of the word. He is a person who listened and understood when I felt I must talk to someone of the hurts and hopes locked inside me; who offered me encouragement when the struggle seemed useless; who was ready, willing and waiting to stand by through sickness and financial distress; a prop to lean on and a source of strength in every test. He is a happily married man who finds in his wife a comfortable companion and a wonderful mother to his children.

Do you, I think I am foolish to go on as I do—finding a measure of happiness in sharing some book or show with him that holds a common interest for both of us, or sometimes a quiet dinner in my apartment followed by an hour listening to the radio or just talking about the many things we have to discuss. (These discussions never border on any plans for a future between us.) He is about 12 years my senior and the only real companion I have—had since I have been a widow.

Marriage is a sacred institution to me and some of the women who come from the so-called better classes and criticize my conduct are only too eager to pass an evening in some man's company drinking and visiting shady places, and usually paying all expenses and patting themselves on the back for being able to pull these tricks on their husbands. My sin is so much greater than theirs, when I hold the interest of this man's family as sacred as my own? They use their husband's name and money only for protection in their flirtations with bachelors and widowers. I am a churchgoer and am a good neighbor and visit few friends, although I have callers, both male and female.

All these people know and accept this man and often spend evenings in our company. These women discuss their affairs with me—home and outside associations—yet they find fault with a friendship that is clean and decent just because he is married. They think I should be angling for some single man who has money and who could take care of me so I could get out and enjoy life while I am young. I cannot make them understand that living with a man just because he pays my bills would be utterly impossible and that I find in my children every reason to be and to live decent, that they will some day appreciate my efforts and willingly share their opportunities with me. Their achievements and success will be a befitting reward for any honorable sacrifice I make now. Do you think it wrong to hold this friendship sacred? My only regret is I did not have the pleasure to cultivate the friendship of his entire family.

I am rather inclined to agree, to a certain extent with your friends. I see no reason for you to waste your time with this man and that is exactly what you are doing. I am even though you may stand by your cultural study in your little associations. It is not that I do not think you should have this man for a friend, that is all right, but it seems to me that if the friendship was on the high level that it should be and that you seem to place it, he would have you meet this wife to whom he seems so happily married and the children he adores. I do not doubt at all that your association is perfectly all right and there really should be no cause for criticism, but you know the Bible says that one must avoid even the appearances of evil.

By your having the quiet little dinners in your apartment and long evenings of quiet conversation, you are inviting criticism whether you want it or deserve it. I know that this man has appealed to you because he has given you understanding and sympathy, but regardless of all this I do not think that you should continue the affair. It will only lead to a great deal of unhappiness for you. I feel sure that in time this companionship you have for him will not be platonic. You will come to love him, because of his goodness and kindness to you.

There is no getting out of it, for the time is bound to come when you are going to depend on him that you will feel that you cannot go along without him. If he has a happy married life with his wife and children, what will he do? In a way, I do not see how he can be so happily married and so adore children, if he enjoys spending so much time with you, and that is no reflection upon you, either. This man is bitter sweet to you, because the happiness you are having with him now does not have a firm foundation. Keep him for a friend if you can, but not a confidant. I would not confide in him so much. Since you are rather young it seems to me that the wise thing to do would be to make friends with some men who are not tied down with the families.

I do not feel that you should be condemned for enjoying the friendship of this man who has meant so much to you, but don't you think that in these two years of friendship you would have had the opportunity of meeting his family? Don't you think that he is purposely keeping you and his wife apart? If his family life is so happy why doesn't he share it with you? This happiness you share with him is momentary. It may survive the years, but as the time goes on it can only make you envious of the woman who has full claim upon him. If you hold marriage so sacred, what would your reaction be if you were the wife in this case?

MY DAY: Surprise Visit From a Son

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Thursday.—I walked into the White House from the hairdressers a few minutes ago and noticed a group of bags in the Lincoln room. My curiosity got the better of me and I looked over. Lo and behold, there was our son Elliott and a civilian friend, who had come with him from Africa.

I had been asking the President every day if there had been any news of when Elliott might turn up. Not later than last night, my husband assured me he had heard nothing, so this was a very joyous surprise. My only regret is that Elliott's wife isn't here and will have to fly up from Texas. Apparently even the President of the United States isn't told these military secrets beforehand!

I am afraid that Elliott is in for a spell in the hospital, because he seems to have picked up some sort of germ. But, let's hope it won't last long. It is wonderful to have him home after the long months of anxiety without news.

The meeting last night of the Pan-American child congress here in the White House, was extremely interesting. I was very proud of Miss Katharine Lenroot and Mr. Adolph Berle, assistant secretary of state, for the fluent way in which they gave their speeches in Spanish. I was the only person who had to say a few words in the English language. I felt much ashamed of myself and hope that some day I shall find an opportunity to master at least enough Spanish to say the few sentences necessary for welcoming a group.

Our hearts have been heavy ever since we heard of the final surrender in the Philippines. These men have made such magnificent history, that one can only feel that Secretary of State Hull has well expressed it in saying the present reverses are a prelude to future victory. However that does not make any feel happier about the men, nurses and few civilians, all now prisoners.

Above everything else, I am proud of General Wainwright's decision to stay with his men and share their fate. I know what a number of a family, who has any one in this area is going through—uncertainty, apprehension and sorrow. We can only pray together and hope that our mounting strength will soon bring us the victory which will put an end to all this suffering.

I still hear every now and then that some people are asking why do we have to fight in all parts of the world? Why can we not stay here and defend our own shores? I should like to have an opportunity to ask the people who murmur thus, how they would like to have our shores turned into a Corregidor?

Doctor Alone Should Interpret X-Rays

By Dr. William Brady.

Every little while some misguided reader informs me that he has had his picture taken, and if he sends the film (X-ray) will I please tell him what to do about it.

Now if such readers would submit the question to me in time I could tell them what to do about it. I'd tell them it is foolish to have an X-ray picture taken, unless the doctor considers it necessary. In any case, only the physician who knows all there is to know of the patient's condition can interpret an X-ray picture, in co-operation with the technician who makes the picture. Certainly an outsider is not competent to interpret the picture.

This same principle applies to blood tests and other laboratory tests. It is sheer extravagance having such tests made when the physician does not order them or consider them necessary. Few competent physicians would be willing to form an opinion much less base a diagnosis on the mere presentation of some reports of laboratory tests. There is too much chance of error involved. If you ask my advice I say one should leave all such diagnostic procedures to the judgment of the physician. Have the tests made only when the physician advises or requests it.

More pathetic are people who permit themselves to be sold a bill of goods and then wonder why instructions, as did this poor fellow: "I have bought a short wave diathermy of the — Company. I paid $135 down and the balance of $65 due in 30 days. I am 54 years old and I always fall asleep when I sit in a chair. I thought I might do me some good. But after two weeks of using it I have not found it helping me any."

Of course I have no way of knowing whether the machine has any intrinsic value, but I regret the reader did not ask my advice before he bought the machine. Diathermy or short wave diathermy means practically heating through. The type of electric current produces heat in the tissues through which it passes. Such treatment gives great relief in various painful conditions, but has no special curative effect of its own.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between: March 21st and April 19th (ARIES). The morning hours and until 2 p. m. do not especially favor dealings with those things that you desire to be stable. After 2 p. m. favors dealings with women and professional people. April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS). Before 10:05 a. m. may be a slow period and you may find it difficult to keep affairs going. The remainder of the day seems filled with favorable influence, making this an auspicious period to seek favors, consultations. May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI). Monetary affairs may be difficult today. The underlying trend of the entire day is towards unwise optimism, making this rather an auspicious day for new and important undertakings, plans, decisions and changes. June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER). Previous to 2:05 p. m. favors sticking to routine matters. Between 2:05 p. m. and 9:15 p. m. recklessness in all ways should be avoided. After 9:15 p. m. favors dealing with people in a conciliatory way, and favors communications, travel and making adjustments. July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO). While the combined influences for the entire day are mostly favorable, they are not such as will allow you to bring matters to a quick consummation. The one quick idea surrounding today is that you may spend much. August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO). The period previous to 11:30 a. m. favors sticking to routine matters. Between 11:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. favors attending to business, financial matters. After 4:30 p. m. favors communications, writings.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA).—The day as a whole is one to attend to private interests, and do not make expansions along ordinary lines. By contrary and in some measure whatever your usual business activities may be. Disension, discussions, lawsuits may be encountered. October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO).—After 12 o'clock noon favors active work of all sorts, ideas that require energy and enthusiasm, literary and publishing work. The remainder of the day operates between 12 noon and 5 p. m. November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS).—Upset conditions and sudden changes resulting in loss will mark new beginnings today. You will probably notice more argument, quarrels or disputes today, and because of a lack of foresight or lack of precaution accidents will be more in evidence. December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN).—This should be a very favorable day for any interest. There is a feeling of permanency in your transactions which will allow you to plan conservatively, and you will find harmony, and you will benefit accordingly. The effort you put forth January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS).—If you have some special task to do, contact and want your interview to proceed smoothly, literary and financial matters, relatives, industrial affairs and matters of romantic interests. February 19th and March 20th (PISCES).—Between 11:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. favors real estate transactions, correspondence, literary and financial matters, relatives, industrial affairs and matters of romantic interests.

Habit in 99% of Cases.
Several years ago I sent for your booklet, "The Constipation Habit." I decided to follow your advice. By the third day I was worried and after four days I was getting panicky, but before resorting to purgative or enema I read once more your assuring statement, and it convinced me. Sure enough on the fifth day everything was all right, and I have never used a laxative of any description since. (R. V.)

Vitamin C
A says if 12 oz. can of tomato juice opened and 6 oz. at once poured into 6 oz. bottle and corked tightly the vitamin C in it will keep at least 8 hours. B says it won't. (C. H. S.)

Answer—I believe some of the vitamin C in factory canned tomato or tomato juice would keep several hours that way. But oxidation and destruction of vitamin C begins as soon as the can is opened, probably continues for several hours even when the juice is kept in an uncorked or open container, before all the vitamin C is destroyed.

Smith and King Pace Purples In 10-0 Victory

Shorty Doyle's Boys' High nine moved a step closer their second straight Big Five prep baseball crown yesterday as Lefty Charlie Smith pitched his best game of the year, a one-hitter, to subdue Commercial, 10 to 0, in seven innings.

Standard, on the mound for the Typists, hurled a fine game himself, allowing only six blows, fanning 10 men and getting the lone Typist hit off Smith, but Commercial committed eight errors to nullify his efforts. Smith struck out eight.

Bennie King got one hit in two times at bat, and that one was the big blow, a home run with the sacks crammed in the fourth.

G. M. A. tallied the winning run in the final frame in whipping Marist, 6 to 5, in the day's other Big Five League game. Cowboy Robinson's long fly scored Sars who lived on an error, and moved to third on a sacrifice and stolen base.

Moody, G. M. A. flinger, fanned nine and he and McDougall, Marist hurler, gave up seven hits each. For Marist Sullivan batted out two for three including a triple, and Livingston bashed two for

I don't think an aviator needs two years at college any more than a lobster has to be boiled before he can swim.

England has already dropped that pair of social handclutts and so has Canada. Rickenbacker and the other great aviators flew with the seat of their pants.

Veverka's 5-Hitter Nips Crackers

Atlanta Hitless For 5 Innings; Chicks Win, 3-1

Ex-Cracker Hurler, Umpires Deal Out Load of Misery.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 8.—The league-leaving Crackers didn't enjoy themselves much in the opener of the Memphis series here. They lost a ball game to the Chicks, 3 to 1, and they got awfully mad at old Steamboat Johnson, the umpire.

They didn't have as much quarrel with Johnson as they did with the Chicks in general, and Frank Veverka in particular. The former Cracker southpaw held Paul Richards, champion five hits and, although he found trouble in lots of spots, had enough to get by.

Meanwhile the Chicks pecked away at Jim Mertz to compile three runs in seven rounds by some timely hitting in the clutch. Mertz yielded seven hits, including two doubles and a triple, each of which counted in the scoring.

THREATENED OFTEN. The Crackers threatened to pin Veverka's arm back several times, but the southpaw managed to buckle down in the clutches and turned them away from the plate on every occasion but one.

Then a triple by Charley Letch, who was later chased from the game, scored Thomassie, who had singled. Later in the inning the Crackers had men on first and third with one out and couldn't score, and in the seventh had men on second and third with one out and failed again.

Lefty Wimpy Willis will work for the Chicks Saturday afternoon with Emil Lochbaum as the likely Cracker starter.

The Chicks were the first to get away from the barrier. Roy Bueschen smacking a triple to left and scoring on Burt Hodge's infield out in the first.

Only two Crackers got to first on Veverka through the first five innings, on one walk and another on a boot, and Pete Thomassie made the first hit with one down in the sixth. He slashed a single past Bill Adair at second.

Ten seconds later he was scoring on a triple into right field by Charley Letch for the run that tied the score.

Glock smothered a ball in front of the plate for a hit, but Letch held third. O'Brien cut at a third strike and Browne chased Bueschen to the far confines of the park to pull down his fly.

CHICKS COME BACK. The Chicks went right back into the lead in their half. Bueschen beat out a hit to Browne and stole second. After Hodge went out, Lee scored on a throw to the foothills of left for two sacks to score Bueschen. Adair fanned, but Schultz cracked a double to left center, scoring Riley. Flgitt was purposely passed and Honeycutt skied to Rambert.

The Crackers, in the midst of a rally in the seventh, charged Steamboat Johnson and it cost them a second baseman. Pep Rambert opened with a double, Larry Smith walked and Buster Blake sacrificed. Jimmy Cox went up to hit for Mertz and when a second strike was called on him, the whole Atlanta team protested.

Charlie Letch was particularly vehement and went away to join Paul Richards somewhere under the stands. Cox then swung at a third strike and Pete Thomassie took one. Cox went to second and Bush went into the box.

Baseball's No. 1 Mother

For several days I had been thinking about a statement made by one of the girls in the classroom at Girls' High the other day.

This young miss, concluding a book report on the life of Charles Edison, observed: "And he gave the credit to his mother." Another young lady added: "Most great people of history have given credit to their mothers."

The teacher declared it was a most timely thought as Mother's Day approaches.

I had been wondering how it would be possible to work in something about Mother's Day in a sports column, keeping in mind what the young ladies at Girls' High had said, when a letter arrived from St. Louis.

J. G. Taylor Spink, able and energetic publisher of The Sporting News, touched with the magic wand of inspiration, has issued a nation-wide appeal in behalf of baseball's No. 1 mother—Mrs. Christina Gehrig.

This will be the first mother's day for Mrs. Gehrig without Lou, the robust youngster who gained great fame as a player with the New York Yankees and then mysteriously was cut down in his prime by an incurable illness.

"Some who knew Mom Gehrig, when Lou was on top and the whole family basked in the sunlight, seemingly have forgotten. Don't YOU forget. Drop her a card. It'll do her—and YOU—good!" urges Publisher Spink.

Timely Visit Taylor visited Mom Gehrig the other day in the family home at Mt. Vernon, N. Y. As he walked through the door the thought struck him...

"Why, it was through this very door that Lou used to bound when he came home... how Lou must have filled this door-frame as he belloved. 'Hey, Mom, I'm home!'... but he'd never shout that happy greeting again. Let's see now, it was hardly a year—last June 2 that he died... Mustn't think about those things just now, mustn't open any old wounds..."

And there was Mrs. Gehrig's response. "I'm glad you caught me home. Henry—that's my husband—he's out for a walk. In a little while I would have been gone up Kensi-co way... yes, the cemetery."

They were very close, as most mothers and boys are. "It has been lonesome. No trip to Florida this spring. I used to go every year after 1927, you know—but I haven't that feeling about baseball right now, and I don't go to the stadium so often any more. I hope that feeling comes back soon, and the game attracts me again, I really do."

"I'll never forget," she continued, her eyes sparkling, "how little Miller Huggins came to me in 1927 and said: 'Never another training trip I'll run with that Lou, if his mother isn't along. He moons all over the place—why, I never saw anybody so homesick.'"

In urging the nation's fans to remember Mom Gehrig on Mother's Day, Publisher Spink wrote—

"Some who knew her almost idolatrous worship of her son, and the 'mother complex' from which Lou supposedly suffered, thought she would snap in her grief. But the innate courage with which she met former crises in the affairs of her little family pulled her through. When Pop became seriously ill while Lou was attending New York's High School of Commerce, she slaved to put her son through school and two years in Columbia. Then, it was a determination to allow nothing to interfere with his education. When he died, she took an even greater pride in her son and his achievements. If her memories were poignant with grief, they also were her support. 'It was good to have had Lou for 38 years, and to enjoy those many happy years with him,' she said. 'And to know so many people thought so highly of him, and to know that his influence on the boys of his native land was all good.'"

Auburn Trims Petrels, 4 to 1, Behind Milner

Tiger Hunter Flings 7th Victory; Final Tilt Today.

AUBURN, Ala., May 8.—(AP)—Walt Milner won his seventh victory today as he gave up only five hits and one run to Oglethorpe while his Auburn teammates rapped out four tallies.

The Plainsmen took the lead in the third when Clarence Hawkins pounded a home run with the bases empty.

The score was tied in the fourth as Crowell reached first on a fielder's choice, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Monson's single.

Auburn broke loose in the seventh. Harkins and Wallis opened the frame with singles and Chestnut drew an intentional pass to load the bases. Curlee drove in two runs with a single and Chestnut scored on an error.

The Plainsmen ended their 1942 season against Oglethorpe tomorrow in Auburn.

Richmond Ace Wins G.I.A.A. Golf Diadem

Lanier Cops Team Title; Smithies, Geechies Tie for 3d.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 8.—(AP)—Phil Harrison, of Richmond Academy at Augusta, won the G. I. A. A. golf title today following in the footsteps of his brother, "Gummy," last year's champion.

Lanier High, of Macon, won the team crown.

The tournament was played on the Savannah Golf Club course over a 36-hole route of medal play.

Harrison put together morning and afternoon rounds of 78-74-152 to win. Gardener Dickinson, of Lanier, posted rounds of 81-75-156 to take second place.

Lanier won the team award with an aggregate medal score of 630, edging out Columbus High-1940 and 1941 champs—with 691.

Savannah High and Tech High, of Atlanta, tied for third place in the team competition with 692, while Richmond Academy was behind with 695.

Harrison placed third in the individual competition last year when his brother, who also went to Richmond Academy, shot a record-breaking 144.

Medals were given each member of the Lanier team.

Jerome Eisenberg, G. I. A. A. vice president, and George Norrie, professional at the Savannah Golf Club and southeastern P. G. A. president, were the officials.

Wil-Far-B-Farm Entries Set Horse Show Pace

By BERT PRATHER.

A Farnell Blair's Wil-Far-B-Farm entries, ably ridden by Maddux Whitley, grabbed off most of the top honors as the thirteenth annual horse show sponsored by the Atlanta Horse Show Association opened its three-day run yesterday afternoon and night at North Fulton Park.

Whitley, mounted on equally talented thoroughbreds from Mr. Blair's famous show horse farm out Decatur way, carried off five first places, and Mrs. Maddux Whitley, riding the beautiful Lady B. Good, also carried off a blue ribbon in her only appearance in the ring.

The opening performances brought out some fine competition. In fact, the night program ran about 45 minutes behind schedule because the judges found it necessary to call for repeat performances in some of the classes in order to pick the winners.

The University of Georgia R. O. T. C. riders swept the four places in the open jumping class on the afternoon program. The Bulldogs also put on their famous trick jumping act to wind up the night's card.

Most of the events for junior riders resulted in close finishes. One of the most spirited events was the class No. 37, for girls 9 to 13, with horsemanship counting. This event was captured by Joan Dodd, of Mountain Rhythm.

Winifred Shackelford piloted her only a Dream into second place and Nancy McClung grabbed off third place on Irish Gentleman.

This afternoon's opening event will get under way at 2 o'clock. The night session is slated to start at 8 o'clock. Most of the fine out-of-town entries will see action in today's two sessions.

AFTERNOON RESULTS.

Navy Relief Gets Gate On Twilight Tilt

Wyatt Wins First; Warneke Beats Riddle; Pirates Win.

BROOKLYN, May 8.—(AP)—One of the most extraordinary games in major league history, played at twilight before a record-breaking crowd of 42,822 fans who contributed $59,859.25 to the Navy Relief Society, brought the Brooklyn Dodgers a 7-to-6 triumph over the New York Giants today.

It was an occasion without parallel in the history of the game. The spectacle was saturated with more oddsities, more thrills and more laughs than could ever have been collected anywhere outside Brooklyn.

To begin with it was not legally a game belonging to the Brooklyn Baseball Club because the Dodgers signed a contract giving the entire direction to the Navy Relief Society in order to escape paying taxes on the proceeds which were to be turned over to the charity.

In the second place the paid admissions, which exceeded the all-time Ebbets Field record of 41,109 set May 30, 1934, did not fill the stands even though the park holds only about 36,000.

Many persons bought tickets who did not use them and in addition players, umpires, peanut vendors, policemen, ushers and others who occupied no seats nevertheless paid their way into the park. No one, not even the sailors, Legionnaires and musicians who paraded in elaborate pregame ceremonies, entered the gates without tickets.

Whitlow Wyatt lasted past the first inning for the first time in three games and went on to attain his first victory of the season, although he couldn't finish.

The Dodgers' final and winning run came in the seventh on a great arching homer smashed over the right field scoreboard by Dolph Camilli. It was his seventh of the season.

Wyatt, who made two of Brooklyn's 13 hits, gave six safeties in 6-1/2 innings, fanned five men, and was effective until the chill of evening got into his old bones.

He skidded in the seventh and walked two in succession. Lefty Bob Chipman from Atlanta came to the mound for his major league debut, walked John Mize to load the bases and then served a single to Willard Marshall for two more runs.

Baseball Summary

Only 5 Hits To Beat Charlie Wagner.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—(AP)—Phil Marchildon threw a five-hitter at the Boston Red Sox in the only American League game of the day today and thereby accomplished these results:

(A) The Athletics beat the Sox, 2 to 1, for the first time this year.

(B) Kept Boston from tying the Yankees for first place in the American League. In fact the setback dropped the Sox to third, a game behind the Yanks and one-half game behind Cleveland.

(C) Ended Charley Wagner's string of nine consecutive victories over the A's. In fact it was the first time the Mackmen have ever defeated Wagner.

(D) Ended Wagner's three-game winning streak this season. He previously had been undefeated.

Wagner yielded only seven hits, well enough to win ordinarily, but Marchildon, who twirled a two-hitter against Detroit last Sunday, was in rare form. He fanned six and retired the first 10 batters to face him.

Lamb Declared High Winner At Stock Show

Saddle Filly Wins Reserve Honor at Annual Display at Athens.

ATHENS, Ga., May 8.—(P)—A lamb walked off with grand championship honors at the annual Little International Livestock show here last night on the campus of the College of Agriculture.

Entered by Howard Garner, sophomore student in the college from Stone Mountain, the lamb took first place over all beef and dairy cattle, hog, mule and horse entries to bring its exhibitor three loving cups.

A saddle filly exhibited by Austin Rheney, of Wadley, took first reserve grand championship, while Billy Kennings, of Americus, won second reserve with a fitted Polona China gilt.

Beef and dairy cattle, despite their widespread importance, did not place in the show except in their own breed classes.

Edmund Martin, of Gainesville, won the dairy breed prize with an aged Jersey cow. Billy Jennings, reserve winner with a hog, took a first place in the beef and dairy classes.

Fred Haley, of Canton, won a trophy as the outstanding freshman entering in the show. The prize was awarded by Jack D. Grist, former university student.

Austine Rheney won the annual Genevieve Tucker award for outstanding activities in animal husbandry.

Wilson Porter, of Martin, who entered the champion mule, won the workstock class exhibit. Mary Hollis, of Columbus, won the sorority, won the sorority riding class competition.

The Little International Livestock show is an annual event at the College of Agriculture, jointly sponsored by the Saddle and Saddle Club and the animal husbandry department.

3 Crewmen Victims Of Train Wreck
BAINBRIDGE, Ga., May 8.—(P)—Atlantic Coast Locomotive today identified the three crewmen who were killed last night when the boiler on the lead locomotive of a double-header passenger train exploded.

The dead:
J. W. Withington, engineer; Gordon Mills, fireman; C. L. Nichols, brakeman.

All three, from Montgomery, Ala., were on the lead engine.
E. D. Watter and R. H. Pickett, engineer and fireman on the second locomotive, were pinned under wreckage, but received minor injuries.

Two baggage cars and a Pullman derailed.
The boiler "blew up" officials said, when the train was about two miles west of Bainbridge.

Farmers Urged To Keep Grass Out of Peanuts
ATHENS, Ga., May 8.—(P)—Georgia farmers were told today they could add some 82,000 pounds of extra oil for the war effort by keeping peanut fields free of grass.

"Early grass control," said E. D. Alexander, extension specialist, "is essential if good yields of peanuts are to be realized. When grass is allowed to accumulate in the row and get to the bunch stage, it will be difficult to remove and in many cases the stand of peanuts will be greatly reduced and the remaining crop will be damaged."

"To keep the grass under control a weeder or drag harrow should be run over the peanuts either with regular intervals from the time peanuts appear above the ground until the plants are up to the knee in the plants. First cultivation is possibly the most important since they will kill the grass before it gets a good hold on the ground."

LaGrange Opens U. S. O. Center

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
LAGRANGE, Ga., May 8.—Thursday afternoon marked the opening of the local USO center, which is housed in the building once occupied by the Dunson Hotel and Haralson streets, one block from the public square.

The center, consisting of the present of two spacious rooms adjoining, offers facilities for relaxation to the hundreds of members of the country's armed forces who gather here each weekend from near-by Fort Benning.

Volunteer workers will be hosts and hostesses for the center, which is maintained by all the civic and church organizations in LaGrange, with the Rev. M. M. Maxwell, pastor of the First Methodist church, heading the project.

Mrs. R. S. O'Neal was chairman of the committee for furnishing the center, and on her committee were Misses Kathleen Pope, Eleanor Orr, and Mrs. Darcey McCurry.

Toccoa Kiwanis Club Pushes War Bond Sale
SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
TOCCOA, Ga., May 8.—The Kiwanis Club at the regular meeting Tuesday evening with Frank C. Gross, president, presiding, presided over the bond sale drive which is being put under way by the Kiwanis Club in cooperation with other civic clubs is actively sponsoring.

Mrs. W. A. Bailey, of Toccoa, and a war mother, spoke to the club, urging every member to do his utmost in the campaign. She asked Kiwanians to not only buy what they could, but to join wholeheartedly in the effort to enlist every citizen of Stephens county and city in the drive.

The drive which began Monday will continue through May 12.

Rites at Sandersville For Richard H. Warren
SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
SANDERSVILLE, Ga., May 8.—Funeral services were held Friday afternoon for Richard H. Warren at Down Church.

Mr. Warren lived near the Ogeechee river and had a private fishing spot that he visited twice a week. Friday afternoon he told his wife he believed he would try to catch some fish for supper. When he failed to return a search was made. Neighbors located the body below the fishing spot. He had apparently suffered a heart attack and toppled into the river. No water was found in the lungs and the coroner stated an inquest was unnecessary.

Surviving, besides his wife, are three daughters, Mrs. L. M. Anderson, of Warthen; Mrs. G. D. Roberts, of Midville; Mrs. E. S. Brown, of Winter Garden, Fla.; one son, J. A. Warren, of Davisboro, and a sister, Mrs. Linnie Hilson, of Augusta.

Negro Taken From Jail, Returned, Settles Suit
MACON, Ga., May 8.—(P)—Lee Spivey, Negro, who was returned alive by mob that had taken him from jail, filed a damage suit against Sheriff J. C. Lewis, of Dodge county, for a "nominal sum."

The Negro sued for $5,000, alleging negligence on the part of the sheriff. Harry McCowan, of Atlanta, attorney for the sheriff's bondsmen, said the latter believed it would be more economical to make the settlement than try the case in court.

Judge Malcolm Jones signed the order dismissing the damage suit in Bibb superior court yesterday at the request of the plaintiff. Spivey was acquitted in the criminal division of Bibb superior court on a charge of criminally wronging a Dodge county white woman.

Ellijay High Student Wins Essay Contest
SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
ELLIJAY, Ga., May 8.—Carol Anderson has been named Gilmer county winner in the statewide essay contest for high school seniors in the Diamond Jubilee conducted by Rich's department store in Atlanta.

J. S. Hudson, Gilmer county's first commissioner of roads and revenues and who served efficiently in this office for 16 years, was the subject of Miss Anderson's essay on "The Citizen of My County Who Has Contributed Most to the State of Georgia."

In winning this top county honor, Miss Anderson, a senior at Ellijay high school, will receive a $25 defense bond and will attend a luncheon at Rich's during May.

DEBATE AT MERCER.
MACON, Ga., May 8.—Debating teams from Carrollton and Fitzgerald will return to Mercer University Saturday to complete a delayed contest in the Georgia High School library meet, which Mercer entertained last week.

The man who can perfectly paint anything but your wife's lips carries his ad in the Business Service column in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Brokers Asked To Bid on Rails

Brokers will be asked to bid on the 32 miles of abandoned street car rails which WPA and the city are taking from city streets. Clarke Donaldson, city chief of construction, announced yesterday.

Donaldson said he had received a suggestion from high government officials in Washington that the rails be handled through brokers, and that he will ask for the bids today.

Removal of the abandoned tracks from the streets was suspended earlier in the week because of the absence of any instructions as to how to dispose of them.

R. E. Cullinane Succumbs Here At Age of 68

Native of Acworth, He Was Pioneer in Auto Field.

Robert Emmett Cullinane, 68, pioneer in the Atlanta automobile field, died yesterday at his home, 262 Daniel avenue, S. E., following a long illness.

Cullinane, the first southeastern agent for the Cadillac Motor Company, spent many years in the automobile business, and for several years was an instructor for salesmen of the Ford Motor Company. Later he organized a Lincoln agency here.

A native of Acworth, Cullinane moved to Atlanta with his parents as a child, and was graduated from Boys' High school. After attending a business school, he was employed as secretary to the late H. M. Atkinson, former chairman of the board of the Georgia Power Company.

In 1926, Cullinane was injured severely in an automobile accident, and had been more or less inactive in business since, although he did devote time to establishing of the Atlanta Motor Club.

Funeral plans will be announced by Brandon-Bond-Condor.

KILLED—Wray B. Smith, of Atlanta, a flyer for the Air Force Ferrying Command, was killed yesterday when his ship collided with an army training plane at Phoenix, Ariz.

Wray B. Smith, Ferrying Pilot, Dies in Crash

2 Planes Collide 5,000 Feet Above Phoenix, Arizona.

Wray B. Smith, of Atlanta, a flyer for the Air Force Ferrying Command and formerly a flying instructor at Candler Field, was one of two men killed yesterday in a plane collision 5,000 feet above Phoenix, Ariz.

The other victim was Lieutenant John K. Austin, of Chicago. In the army training plane with Lieutenant Austin was Lieutenant Jack O. Scott, of Phoenix, who bailed out and parachuted to safety. He was unhurt.

The Associated Press report quoted Scott as saying he did not see Smith's plane as it approached from beneath until just before the collision. Austin, a student in the instructor's school, was engaged in instrument flying with Scott as a safety observer.

Smith joined the ferrying command in January and was stationed in Indiana, his family said, being sent around the country on ferrying missions.

He was an instructor at Candler Field before then. He had not been home since he left the city in January. His home here was at 666 Moreland avenue, N. E. The 41-year-old pilot was born in Blumdale, Ga., where for several years he was vice president and general manager of the Emanuel Farm Company. He was a graduate of Georgia Military Academy and Georgia Tech.

Smith took up flying about 10 years ago. He is survived by his wife and his mother, Mrs. H. R. Smith, of 666 Moreland avenue, and four sisters, Mrs. Howard Shaw and Mrs. J. R. Garner Jr., of Atlanta; Mrs. Joe D. Buchanan, of Macon, and Mrs. H. B. Preston, of San Francisco.

H. A. Berron Dies; Last Rites Today

H. A. Berron, former clerk at the Atlanta federal penitentiary, died yesterday at his home in Clairmont, near Gainesville.

For 23 years he was employed at the penitentiary, retired about five years ago and established his residence at Clairmont.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Bessie Rogers, Mrs. Fay Stone, Mrs. Julia Woodall, Mrs. Joe Tow, and two sons, Everett and Millard Berron.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Cleveland Baptist church, with the Rev. Claude Boverton officiating. Burial will be in the churchyard.

The Rev. A. V. Simms, 78, former pastor of the Glazener Memorial church and also served as a member of the Georgia legislature from Brooks county at the age of 21, died Wednesday at his home in Safety Harbor, Fla., it was learned here.

He helped to organize the Atlanta church and also served a Primitive Baptist church in Valdosta for many years.

Surviving are seven daughters, Mrs. G. T. Dowling and Miss Bertha Simms, of Atlanta; Mrs. Jesse Dimond and Mrs. H. F. Langford, Tampa, Fla.; Mrs. W. H. Branch of Habira; Mrs. Stephen Dimond of Homestead, Fla., and Mrs. Otto Tonissen, of Jacksonville, Fla.; and two sons, I. J. and D. E. Simms, of Valdosta.

Funeral services were held yesterday in Valdosta.

H. G. Breedlove, 51, Dies of Injuries

H. G. Breedlove, 51, of 539 Lake drive, Hapeville, who was struck by a road scraper Wednesday afternoon, died yesterday at a hospital.

Breedlove, a veteran paving construction superintendent, was supervising paving in the Capitol Homes project, when a road scraper, parked near by, began to move and rolled over him.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. H. G. Dyche; two sons, Cecil and James L. Breedlove; two sisters, Mrs. W. C. Kimbrough and Mrs. Joe Carter, and five brothers, Gus, Jack, Jimmy, P. W. and Ned Breedlove. Funeral plans will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

★ THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME ★

POP IS VERY PARTICULAR ABOUT HIS APPEARANCE WHEN HE HAS HIS PICTURE TAKEN.

NOW, JUNIOR. NOT NOW. I WOULDN'T WANT ANYONE TO SEE A PHOTOGRAPH OF ME DRESSED LIKE THIS.

BUT GET A LOAD OF POP THE FOLLOWING SATURDAY PM.

HEY, JUNIOR. QUICK! RUN AND GET YOUR CAMERA AND SHOOT MY PICTURE.

THANKS TO NELL & WILSON, KENWOOD, CALIF.

★ SMITTY ★

WE CAN'T TELL THE BOSS WE'RE HERE--THE GUARD IS WITH HIM ALL THE TIME, PROFESSOR.

GOSH, WHAT'S GOING TO HAPPEN TO ME? OH, WHY DID I EVER SPANK THAT PYGMY KING AND GET MYSELF IN THIS JAM!

MY GOOSE IS COOKED--GOSH, I'LL NEVER SEE SMITTY AGAIN--

DEEP IN THE HEART OF TEXAS...

Fire Follows

Store's Looting

An early morning burglary followed by a fire which police described as arson virtually wiped out the Benjamin Mitchell Grocery Store, 170 Auburn avenue, according to police reports.

Radio Patrolmen J. W. Cody and T. H. Weaver said they found an intruder had entered a rear window. After ransacking the store, the officers said, the intruders opened all the gas jets and lit them.

Extensive fire damage prevented an immediate inventory of what was stolen, but Mitchell told the officers he estimated the loss at about $3,500.

DICK TRACY

OH, MY DARLING. WHAT BRINGS YOU HERE?

WE ARE ON DANGEROUS GROUND. MATTI HAS BEEN KILLED--AN AUTO ACCIDENT.

NO, NO! IT CAN'T BE!

WHAT WILL WE DO WITH HIM? WHAT WILL--

AND ACROSS THE COURT IN THE OTHER BUILDING.

AH, MY ACTOR FRIENDS, YOU ARE PLAYING WITH FIRE.

ORPHAN ANNE

HOW DO YOU KNOW THIS NEW EXPLOSION WILL DO ALL YOU CLAIM?

SUFFICE IT TO SAY THAT I DO KNOW--WITH IT YOU WILL CONQUER THE WORLD--IN A FEW WEEKS!

YOU HAVE NOT LIED TO US BEFORE--IT IS WORTH LOOKING INTO--YES--WE WILL GO WITH YOU, DOCTOR--

JUST ONE MOMENT--THE SMALL MATTER OF PAYMENT--WE SETTLE THAT FIRST!

OF COURSE--IF THIS STUFF PROVES HALF AS GOOD AS YOU CLAIM, YOU WILL BE REWARDED BEYOND YOUR FONDEST DREAMS--

FOR THE MOMENT, I MUST TRUST YOU--LET US GO--NO TIME TO LOSE--

WE MUST GET THAT FORMULA BEFORE IT GOES BEYOND OUR REACH! WE MUST MOVE SWIFTLY--

WE WILL NOT BE EXPECTED--WE FIVE WILL BE SUFFICIENT--IT WILL BE DARK WHEN WE ARRIVE--

MON MULLINS

I CAN'T IMAGINE OLD MR. CUSH TAKIN' YOU OUT IN CAFE SOCIETY LAST NIGHT, UNCLE WILLIE.

WELL, THERE IS A PHOTO OF ME AND MAMIE AT THE TABLE WITH J.C. AND MISS TYPE, OUR NEW SECRETARY.

IF MAMIE'D MOVED A BIT TO THE RIGHT, MR. CUSH AND MISS TYPE COULD OF GOT INTO THE PICTURE TOO.

UGH-HUH-- BUT WHERE WAS YOU?

WELL, YOU SEE THAT EXTRA PAIR OF SHOES STICKING OUT FROM UNDER THE TABLE.

YEH.

WELL, THAT, MOONSHINE, IS ME!

SMILIN' JACK

THE PROSECUTING ATTORNEY IS NOW QUESTIONING PROSPECTIVE JURORS CINDY'S TRIAL.

--AND, MR. ZEKE RUSTY, DO YOU KNOW CINDY, THE DEFENDANT?

DO I KNOW HER? BACK IN 1939 CINDY, IKE, AND JAKE HAD A FLYING SCHOOL BETWEEN MIAMI AND PALM BEACH!

CINDY TAUGHT ME TO FLY--AND WHAT A TEACHER--SHE'S AS GOOD AS EVER SIGNED A LOG BOOK--AN' YOU ASK--

--DO I KNOW HER? WOO--WOO--

AHEM--SIR, I'M SURE THE COURT APPRECIATES YOUR ENTHUSIASM, BUT--

THIS IS A MURDER TRIAL--NOT A BEAUTY CONTEST--YOU ARE EXCUSED AS A JUROR, SIR!

TERRY

NICE LITTLE LAYOUT YOU'VE GOT HERE, BEAUTIFUL! HOW'S NIP-NIP?

OUR SURGEON IS AT WORK... HE WILL BE WELL SOON ENOUGH! HE TOLD ME OF YOUR ADVENTURE!...

IF I HAD KNOWN THOSE EXPLOSIVES WERE FOR YOU I WOULD HAVE RUSHED THEM HERE MUCH SOONER!

THE GLIB TONGUE RETAINS ITS SHARP EDGE... IT IS ESPECIALLY NOTICEABLE SINCE ITS OWNER KNOWS THE DRAGON LADY IS NOW UNDER OBLIGATION TO HIM!

WHAT KIND OF TALK IS THAT? WE'RE ALLIES NOW, BARE! I'LL BE GLAD TO HELP YOU PLANT THAT WHAM-STUFF UNDER SOME OF THE LITTLE FLOWER-ARRANGERS!

...I AM AWARE OF THE HANDSOME ONE'S ABILITIES--I AM FURTHER AWARE OF HIS SHREWDRINESS AS A BARGAINER! IN RETURN FOR HIS GOOD EFFORTS, THE DRAGON LADY MUST OFFER SHELTER TO THE MOUSEY ONE AND HER CHILD! IT IS THE FIRST TIME I EVER HAD TO BECOME A SOCIAL WORKER IN ORDER TO HOLD A MAN!

THE GUMPS

I'M GOING TO SHOW YOU A FEAT OF MAGIC THAT HAS TAKEN ME YEARS TO MASTER--I LEARNED ITS SECRET FROM MY GOOD FRIEND, THE RAJAH OF GABSON, WHILE I WAS SOJOURNING IN PESHAWAR, INDIA--NOTE THIS EMPTY CEDAR CHEST--

JUST AN ORDINARY CEDAR CHEST--NO FALLEN SOLDIERS AS YOU CAN SEE--NOW, PLACE YOUR UMBRELLA CAVE IN IT--CLOSE THE LID, AND SIT ON IT--GO ON--

OK--IT'S IMPOSSIBLE FOR YOU TO REMOVE MY CANE WHILE I'M SITTING ON THE LID--

THAT'S WHAT YOU THINK! NOW SIT TIGHT WHILE I MAKE YOUR CANE TRAVEL FROM THAT CHEST INTO THIS OLD CLOCK--ABRA--CADABRA--GENGHIS KHAN!

AND BEHOLD, ULYSSES! YOUR CANE, NONE THE WORSE FOR ITS SWIFT TRIP, RESTS WITHIN THE OLD CLOCK!

WELL, I'LL BE SWITCHED!!!

SUPERMAN

WH-WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO TO ME?

WE HAD PREPARED A RATHER ELABORATE RECEPTION FOR CLARK KENT, BUT SINCE YOU CAME IN HIS PLACE, WE MAY AS WELL TRY IT OUT ON YOU!

UP INTO THE SKY ROCKETS A HUMAN BOLT...

IF LOIS IS IN TROUBLE, I'LL KNOW IT SOON ENOUGH!

SHORTLY AFTER ABOVE THE CLAYTON WAREHOUSE SUPERMAN MAKES USE OF HIS X-RAY VISION...

IN TROUBLE IS PUTTING IT MILDLY!

TARZAN

TARZAN STRUCK WITH THE KNIFE WHICH HE HELD IN HIS BOUND HANDS.

THE BLADE SLASHED THE MAN'S ARM--HE LEAPED BACK AND WHIPPED OUT HIS REVOLVER!

BUT THE APE-MAN, ACTING WITH LIGHTNING SPEED, DISARMED THE FELLOW AND TOPPLED HIM AGAINST THE STEERSMAN!

THE WHEEL SPUN, THE BOAT WHIRLED--AND CAPSIZED!
